WEEKLY NEWS RELEASE

SEPT. 30, 2014

CINCINNATI BENGALS (3-0) AT NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS (2-2)

WEEK 5, GAME 4
SUNDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL
OCT. 5 AT GILLETTE STADIUM

UP NEXT: WEEK 6, GAME 5
OCT. 12 VS. CAROLINA

GAME NOTES

Kickoff: 8:30 p.m. Eastern.

Television: National coverage on NBC's Sunday Night Football, with Al Michaels (play-by-play), Cris Collinsworth (analyst) and Michele Tafoya (sideline reporter). The game will be aired in the Bengals home market on WLWT-TV (Channel 5) in Cincinnati, WDTN-TV (Channel 2) in Dayton and on WLEX-TV (Channel 18) in Lexington, Ky.

Radio: Coverage on the Bengals Radio Network, led by a "triple cast" on Cincinnati flagship stations WLW-AM (700), WCKY-AM (ESPN 1530; all sports) and WEBN-FM (102.7). Broadcasters are Dan Hoard (play-by-play) and Dave Lapham (analyst).

The game will also be aired to a national audience on affiliates of Westwood One Sports. Broadcasters are Kevin Kugler (play-by-play), James Lofton (analyst) and Anthony Becht (sideline reporter).

Setting the scene: First there was the nail-biter, a comeback 23-16 win at Baltimore. Then the solid beatdown, 24-10 vs. Atlanta, and the blowout, 33-7 over Tennessee. Last week the Bengals had the bye, now it's on to "B" number five, a blockbuster at New England on NBC's Sunday Night Football.

Bengals Nation is one buzzing place, to be sure, but head coach Marvin Lewis would prefer his players wear ear plugs.

"We've taken care of business three times; we've done what we could do," Lewis told his players after their Sept. 21 romp over Tennessee. "But we don't look back, we focus on the next moment. That's what the great teams do. We have to get better every day."

The 3-0 Bengals are the AFC's only unbeaten team, with Arizona of the NFC also at 3-0. But even before the Tennessee game, Lewis dismissed the significance — beyond fan fun — of the Bengals sitting at or near the top of media "power rankings."

"I don't think it's worth anything to us, is it?" he asked. "The key is to be No. 1 in the rankings in February — the second week of February, not even the first week. Until then, it doesn't matter, and I think our players also realize we don't get anything for it now."

"Ignore the noise," agreed LB Rey Mauluga. "Ignore the positive, just like you try to ignore the negative. We're happy, we've got a lot of pride in what we've accomplished, but it's a long and tough road ahead. We know what we've got to do. We've got things we can fix."

Given the increasing impressiveness of each win this season, believers in momentum might see last week's bye as not well-timed. But Lewis expresses no worry about his troops having taken some time off.

"We will have their attention," he said. "We're traveling to Foxborough to play against one of the best quarterbacks of all time (Tom Brady) and one of the best-coached teams in the NFL year after year."

Regardless of the won-lost record, most coaches and players would say they prefer not to take their bye so early. Last week was the first in 2014 for NFL teams to have a bye.

But the Bengals were winning despite having a number of core contributors injured, so from an injury standpoint, the bye should prove timely. Players who missed the Tennessee game but could be ready for New England include LB Vontaze Burfict, WR Marvin Jones, G Kevin Zeitler and DT Brandon Thompson. And though WR A.J. Green played and was quite productive against Tennessee — six catches for 102 yards — he missed the previous game with turf toe and said he was glad to have an extra week to get back to 100 percent. Two younger players — HB Rex Burkhead and LB Sean Porter — also could be available in New England after missing the first three games.

"I didn't like it to begin with," Lewis said of the early bye, "but given where we are, it's not so bad. We didn't lose anyone with anything serious against Tennessee, so we hope to have everybody — or almost everybody — back."

And to analysts nationwide, a full-strength Bengals team could look downright scary. Against Tennessee, the Bengals not only dominated, they did it with a flair. They delighted the home crowd with their first TD, with QB Andy Dalton lateraling to WR Mohamed Sanu on an apparent end-around before Sanu pulled up and rifled the ball back across the field to Dalton. The quarterback made a tough catch against tight coverage by CB Bliid Wreh-Wilson and ran 18 yards for a TD, diving near the goal line to catch a corner of the end zone. It was the first TD reception by a QB in Bengals history. Sanu, meanwhile, has thrown the only two Bengals TD passes by a WR.

Cincinnati's defense gave up a middle-of-the-road yards total — 326 — but it had fans thinking shutout until midway through the fourth quarter, when the Titans pushed across to score to shorten a 33-0 deficit. Tennessee converted its first two third-down situations but was stymied on its last 10. Cincinnati won the almost always crucial takeaway battle, 2-1, and Titans QB Jake Locker was held to a 41.9 passer rating. S George Iloka, who had two interceptions Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, led the team in tackles (eight) and had a pass defensed that led to one of Cincinnati's interceptions. DE Carlos Dunlap was all over the field, making six tackles with a sack.

Elsewhere in the AFC North, Baltimore is just a half-game behind the Bengals, at 3-1. Pittsburgh is a game-and-a-half back at 2-2, and Cleveland is two back at 1-2. The Ravens play at Indianapolis this week, Pittsburgh is at Jacksonville, and Cleveland visits Tennessee.

The series: The Patriots lead 14-9, including 8-2 as the home team. The Bengals won the last meeting, however, 13-6 last season in Cincinnati.

The most recent game at New England was a 38-24 win by the Patriots in the 2010 season opener.

Cincinnati's first victory in the series was a memorable one, as the 1970 team won 45-7 over Boston at Riverfront Stadium to clinch the AFC Central Division title. The Paul Brown-coached Bengals, in their third season, became at the time the youngest franchise ever to reach the playoffs.

In 1988, a Super Bowl-bound Bengals team opened the season with a 6-0 start before suffering its first loss, 27-21 at New England.

The series began at baseball's storied Fenway Park. In an American Football League game in 1968, the Patriots beat the expansion Bengals, 33-14.

The complete Bengals-Patriots series listing is on page 211 of the 2014 Bengals Media Guide.

Team bests from the series:

Bengals — MOST POINTS: 45, in a 45-7 win at Riverfront Stadium in 1970. LARGEST VICTORY MARGIN: 38, in the 45-7 win in 1970. FEWEST POINTS ALLOWED: 6, in the most recent meeting, a 13-6 win at Cincinnati last season.

Patriots — MOST POINTS: 38 (twice), most recently in the last meeting at Foxborough, a 38-24 Patriots win 2010. LARGEST VICTORY MARGIN: 25, in a 38-13 win in 2006. FEWEST POINTS ALLOWED: 2, in a 7-2 victory at New England in 1993.

The last meetings: Summaries of the two most recent Bengals-Patriots meetings — at New England in 2010 and at Cincinnati in '13 — are on page 16 of this news release.

Records vs. Patriots: The Patriots tagged Boomer Esiason for five interceptions on Oct. 16, 1988 at New England — the most INTs in a game by a Bengals passer.

Lee Johnson, who played for both Cincinnati and New England, launched a 76-yard punt for the Patriots on Sept. 9, 2001 — the longest opponent's punt in Bengals history.

Bengals visit turnover kings: The Patriots had a bad night in turnover differential at Kansas City this past Monday — minus-three. That could be described as quite rare.

Since 2003, the Patriots are plus-133 in differential, the NFL's best performance by a staggering margin. The next-best team, Indianapolis, is not quite half as good, at plus-64.

The 2003 season is used as the start date for this comparison because it covers Marvin Lewis' tenure as Bengals head coach. Lewis has the Bengals in third place in differential for this period, at plus-43. The Bengals lead the NFL in differential this season, at plus-6.

"There are a lot of reasons the Patriots have been successful," Lewis says, "but that one would have to stand out against just about anything."

Since '03, NFL teams with just a plus-one differential have won 69.3 percent of their games. At plus two the percentage has been 83.6. Teams with any plus from one to five have won at a 79.9 percent clip.

Under Lewis, the Bengals have reversed their fortunes in turnover differential. Prior to Lewis' tenure, the Bengals had posted a minus turnover differential for five straight years (1998-2002).

Here are the top five teams in differential since 2003:

TEAM	TAKEAWAYS	GIVEAWAYS	DIFFERENTIAL
New England	361	228	+133
Indianapolis	299	235	+64
Cincinnati	335	292	+43
Baltimore	336	295	+41
Carolina	332	293	+39
Green Bay	319	280	+39

Since 2003, the Bengals rank fourth in the NFL in most takeaways (335) and fifth in points off turnovers (1042).

Dalton, Brady tough in close: Bengals QB Andy Dalton ranks third among active NFL passers in ratio of red-zone TDs to INTs (minimum of 25 red-zone TDs), and New England's Tom Brady is close behind him in fourth place. Dalton has thrown for 56 TDs and just three INTs, a ratio of 18.7-to-1. Brady is at 18.1-to-1. The leader in the category is Russell Wilson of Seattle, and Aaron Rodgers of Green Bay is second.

"Andy's performance in this area is the type of thing we've come to expect from him," said Bengals head coach Marvin Lewis. "He's not only a fine talent, but a smart player who is going to avoid the big mistake. We've got a lot of confidence in Andy when we get the ball into scoring range."

Here are the active NFL leaders in the category of TD-INT ratio on red-zone plays (minimum 25 TDs):

PLAYER, CURRENT TEAM	TD	INT	RATIO
Russell Wilson, Seattle	40	1	40.0-to-1
Aaron Rodgers, Green Bay	127	4	31.8-to-1
Andy Dalton, Cincinnati	56	3	18.7-to-1
Tom Brady, New England	254	14	18.1-to-1
Ryan Tannehill, Miami	32	2	16.0-to-1

It isn't at all close: The Bengals and Patriots have two of the NFL's lowest (and best) numbers for aggregate passer rating by opponents. But the Bengals are far-and-away No. 1, having limited their three foes to a 56.9 rating.

The Patriots were a close second at 57.4 entering their Monday night game at Kansas City. No other team was (or is) under 73.0. But Chiefs QB Alex Smith bombed New England for a 144.4 rating, and the Patriots' season mark was elevated to 75.0.

Bengals opponents have been held to 76 completions in 140 attempts (54.3 percent) for 761 yards (253.7 per game), with two TD passes and six interceptions.

On Sunday night: The Bengals are looking for only their second win in a Sunday night road game. The first instance was in 1992 at Chicago on ESPN's Sunday Night Football, a 31-28 win in overtime. The Bengals are 3-12 in Sunday night games overall and 1-8 on the road.

The Bengals have not previously played New England on Sunday night.

Also at night: The Bengals are 5-3 playing on Thursday night, 0-1 on Friday night, 0-2 on Saturday night and 10-20 on Monday night.

Bengals-Patriots Connections: Bengals WR Brandon Tate was drafted by the Patriots in 2009 (third round) and played for them from 2009-10 ... Patriots WR Kenbrell Thompkins played at the University of Cincinnati ... Patriots FB James Develin was on Bengals practice squad for part of 2010 season and all of '11 season; he also was with Bengals during '12 training camp ... Patriots OL Josh Kline is from Mason, Ohio (Mason High School) ... Patriots DB Nate Ebner played at Ohio State ... Patriots DT Chris Jones played at Bowling Green ... Bengals OT/G Emmett Cleary (Practice Squad) played at Boston College ... Bengals linebackers coach Matt Burke is from Hudson, Mass., and coached at Boston College (2000-02) and Harvard (2003) ... Patriots cornerbacks coach Josh Boyer is from Heath, Ohio and coached at Dayton in 2001.

THE HEAD COACHES

Marvin Lewis in 2014 extends his Bengals record for head coaching tenure to 12 seasons. He has led the team to the postseason in four of the last five years, including three straight. The Bengals are one of only five NFL teams to be in the playoffs every year since 2011, and they are one of only six clubs to qualify as many as four times in the last five years.

In total, Lewis has coached five Bengals playoff teams, also a franchise record. Paul Brown is second in the category, with three.

Lewis has 93 career victories, most in Bengals history by a margin of 29 over Sam Wyche (64). Lewis' record is 93-85-1 in the regular season and 93-90-1 including postseason.

The Bengals went 11-5 in the regular season in 2013, winning the AFC North Division championship by three games over both Baltimore and Pittsburgh. Cincinnati lost in the first round of the playoffs, however, falling 27-10 to San Diego at Paul Brown Stadium.

Last year's division title was Cincinnati's third under Lewis. In a 2009 title season in which the Bengals swept all six division games, Lewis was the consensus choice as NFL Coach of the Year. Lewis also led Cincinnati to an AFC North title in 2005.

Lewis ranks second in the NFL in longest current tenure with one team, trailing only Bill Belichick, who is in his 15th straight season with New England. In the category of most seasons as an NFL head coach with one or more teams, Lewis in 2014 ranks sixth among active coaches, behind Belichick (20th season in 2014), Jeff Fisher (20), Tom Coughlin (19), the Chiefs' Andy Reid (16) and John Fox (13).

Lewis was named the ninth head coach in Bengals history on Jan. 14, 2003. In '02, he directed the NFL's fifth-ranked defense with Washington, serving as assistant head coach in addition to his role as defensive coordinator. Prior to his year with the Redskins, he was a record-setting defensive coordinator for the Baltimore Ravens. His six seasons with the Ravens (1996-2001) included a Super Bowl victory following the '00 season. In the '00 season, Lewis' Baltimore defense set the NFL record for fewest points allowed in a 16-game campaign (165), and the '00 Ravens are always included in discussions of the best single-season NFL defenses of all time.

Lewis entered the NFL as linebackers coach with Pittsburgh from 1993-95, guiding the careers of Pro Bowl selections Kevin Greene, Chad Brown, Levon

Kirkland and Greg Lloyd.

Born Sept. 23, 1958, in McDonald, Pa., near Pittsburgh, Lewis played linebacker at Idaho State and earned All-Big Sky Conference honors in each of his three seasons ('78-80). He began his coaching career as an assistant at Idaho State University in 1981.

New England's Bill Belichick is in his 40th season as an NFL coach and is the only head coach in league history to win three Super Bowls in a four-year span. His Patriots teams captured league titles in the 2001, '03 and '04 seasons. They also advanced to the Super Bowl in the 2007 and '11 seasons, losing those games. They have won 10 of the last 11 AFC East titles, including the last five. Last year's New England team went 12-4 and lost to Denver in the AFC Championship game.

Belichick is in his 15th season as Patriots head coach and has a 183-71 New England record, including 18-8 in postseason. His Patriots clubs hold NFL records for most overall consecutive wins (21) and consecutive playoff wins (10).

He was head coach of the Cleveland Browns from 1991-95, posting a 37-45 mark, including 1-1 in postseason. Overall, Belichick's NFL head coaching record is 220-116, including 18-8 in postseason.

Belichick has long been known as one of the NFL's best defensive coaches and was a highly successful assistant with the N.Y. Jets and with the Patriots. His first NFL assignment was as a special assistant with the Baltimore Colts in 1975, his first year out of Wesleyan College, where he played center and tight end from 1971-74.

Belichick was born in Nashville, Tennessee.

Lewis vs. Patriots: Patriots lead 4-1.

Lewis vs. Belichick: Belichick leads 4-1.

Belichick vs. Bengals: Belichick leads 13-4, including 8-2 with Cleveland and 5-2 with New England.

BENGALS NOTES

Two big firsts: Through Week 4, the Bengals rank first in the NFL in scoring defense (11.0) and tied for first in turnover differential (plus-6).

Arizona and Baltimore are tied for second in scoring defense (15.0). Cincinnati's 33 total points allowed are the fewest by a Bengals team in Games 1-3 since the divisional championship season of 2005, when the total was 28 (all in victories). The Bengals record for fewest points allowed per game in a full season is 15.0, set in 1976.

The Bengals' highest rank in scoring defense for a full season has been fifth. The 1972 team ranked fifth (16.4), and last year's team ranked tied for fifth (19.1).

At plus-6 in turnover differential, the Bengals are one better than Buffalo and San Diego. The Bengals have seven takeaways (6 INTs, 1 FR) and one giveaway (INT). On defense the Bengals are tied for the NFL lead in INTs. On offense, they are the only team not to fumble and are one of five teams not to lose a fumble.

The Bengals twice previously have led the NFL in turnover differential. The 1996 team led at plus-19, and the 2005 club led at plus-24. The plus-24 reading is the franchise record.

Pass protection on record run: For the first time in franchise history, the Bengals played Games 1-3 without allowing a sack. The previous low has been two sacks allowed in the first three games, that occurring in both 1972 and '92.

The Bengals are the only team in the NFL not to allow a sack this season. Baltimore and Denver are tied for second-best at three. The Ravens have played four games, while the Bengals and Broncos have each played only three.

"My hat's off to our line, and the rest of the offense as well," said QB Andy Dalton. "The other 10 guys all play a part, and I'm trying to not hold the ball too long so that I can help out."

The Bengals stayed clean for the third straight game on Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee despite the absence of starting RG Kevin Zeitler (calf injury). Seventh-year pro Mike Pollak filled in capably. The other starting G is fourth-year pro Clint Boling, and between the guards is rookie C Russell Bodine, bidding to become the first Bengals rookie to hold down a starting position for a season since G Eric Steinbach in 2003. Cincinnati's OTs are two veterans in their prime, Andrew Whitworth on the left side and Andre Smith on the right.

"We've just got to keep pushing forward and getting better," head coach Marvin Lewis said of the offensive line. "We played with a different combination against the Titans, and we just have to make sure they keep playing together.

Russell (Bodine) is doing a nice job. The tackles have been consistent. We've just got to keep going and keep getting better. Clint (Boling) did a great job in the Tennessee game against a good player (DT Jurrell Casey). Mike (Pollak) stepped in and did a nice job. I feel good about that."

The Bengals record for fewest sacks allowed in a season is 17, set in 2007.

Eleven (new record) and counting: The Sept. 21 win over Tennessee was the Bengals' 11th straight regular-season triumph at home, a franchise record. The Bengals will shoot for No. 12 on Oct. 12 vs. Carolina.

The streak started with a win over Baltimore in the 2012 home finale. Last season, en route to the AFC North Division championship, Cincinnati went 8-0 at home for the second time in team history, and this year the home mark is 2-0.

At 10, the streak had tied a run of 10 that covered the full 1988 season and the first two games of 1989.

The Bengals actually won 12 straight at home (Riverfront Stadium) over 1988-89, but two of those were 1988 playoff wins, and playoffs are a separate category in official NFL record-keeping. The current team's overall home win streak was interrupted by a 2013 home playoff loss to San Diego.

The Bengals have not lost at home in the regular season since falling by one point (20-19) to Dallas on Dec. 9, 2012. Cincinnati won its last three home games of last season by margins of 14, 28 and 17 points, and the Bengals have prevailed by 14 and 26 points in their two home games this season.

Here's a recap of the record 11-game win streak:

DATE	OPPONENT	SCORE	COMMENT
12-30-12	Baltimore	23-17	Bengals win despite 352-189 yards deficit
9-16-13	Pittsburgh	20-10	Win on MNF after 10-10 halftime tie
9-22-13	Green Bay	34-30	Bengals led 14-0, then trailed 30-14
10-6-13	New England	13-6	Pats held to 1-for-12 on third down
10-27-13	N.Y. Jets	49-9	Marvin Jones club-record four TD catches
11-17-13	Cleveland	41-20	Club-record 31 points in a quarter (2nd)
12-8-13	Indianapolis	42-28	Andy Dalton 120.5 passer rating
12-22-13	Minnesota	42-14	Win plus help delivers AFC North title
12-29-13	Baltimore	34-17	Largest ever Bengals win margin vs. Ravens
9-14-14	Atlanta	24-10	No sacks allowed, no giveaways, three takeaways
9-21-14	Tennessee	33-7	Sanu-to-Dalton TD pass opens floodgates

Four-for-six: The Bengals' 3-0 start this season is the franchise's seventh unbeaten start of three or more games. In four of the previous six instances, the Bengals made the playoffs:

YEAR	START	FINAL	COMMENT
1969	3-0	4-9-1	Wheels fell off in season No. 2
1975	6-0	11-3-0	Wild Card despite franchise-best win pct. (.786)
1988	6-0	12-4-0	Advanced to Super Bowl XVI
1990	3-0	9-7-0	Won tiebreaker in AFC Central
2005	4-0	11-5-0	Division champs in Lewis' third year
2006	3-0	8-8-0	Last-second losses in last two games

Byes coming and going: Under head coach Marvin Lewis, the Bengals are 6-6 in games before a bye and 4-7 in games after a bye.

But they've done better in recent years, after a slow Lewis start in these categories. Since 2008, Cincinnati is 5-2 before a bye and 3-3 after.

Green just keeps getting better: WR A.J. Green brought an exceptional skill level to Cincinnati in 2011, as the fourth overall selection in the draft, and he has steadily improved every year. The fact he's in only his fourth season cannot be of cheer to the Bengals' AFC North Division foes.

Green's increasing dominance has certainly been on display during the Bengals' 3-0 start. Though it might seem opponents must be game-planning to stop him, he simply finds a way to get open and make great grabs. He has topped the 100-yard mark in each of his two full games played this season, something he didn't accomplish in any of his first three campaigns.

After playing only five snaps Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, due to turf toe, Green wasn't quite 100 percent on Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee. But he still led all receivers in the game in catches (six) and receiving yards (102). Throw in two Titans pass interference flags against him, and one could argue Green almost exactly matched his 131-yard, one-TD performance from the season opener at Baltimore. The two flags against the Titans totaled 29 yards (102+29=131), and one of them was in the end zone, setting up a one-yard Giovanni Bernard TD run on the next play.

Green now has 17 games of 100-plus yards in 49 contests, an average of one every 2.9 games. His next 100-yarder will tie him with Cris Collinsworth (played eight seasons) for fourth place on the Bengals' all-time list. Green is only three away from tying Isaac Curtis (played 12 seasons) for second place at 20. The franchise leader, at this point still by a wide margin, is Chad Johnson (played 10 seasons) at 31.

Last season, Green became the first Bengal to log six 100-yard games in a season, and he also became the first Bengal to get 100 in five consecutive games.

"I felt good," Green said after the Tennessee game, "but I'm glad I have the bye week to fully heal up and get to 100 percent. Then I'll be ready to go for the rest of the season."

Green's TD at Baltimore was a highlight-reel 77-yarder, featuring a juggling catch of a tipped ball followed by a "double-juke" move that left a Ravens defender in his tracks and cleared a smooth path to the end zone. The fourth-quarter score brought the Bengals from a 16-15 deficit to a 23-16 win.

Green the leader: A Pro Bowl selection in each of his first three seasons, Bengals WR A.J. Green is fulfilling his preseason pledge to be more of a team leader in 2014. What stood out after Green's winning TD on Sept. 7 at Baltimore was his obviously intense emotional reaction after reaching the end zone. Previously, he had reacted to most big plays with relative nonchalance.

And prior to the offense taking the field for the decisive possession, Green had been seen speaking individually to teammates on the sideline, urging that the Bengals could come back from a 16-15 deficit after the gut punch of surrendering a 15-0 lead.

OT Andrew Whitworth proclaimed "it's time for that kind of emotion" from Green.

"It's time for him to play this game and not just be great at it," Whitworth said, "but for lack of better words, put his foot on the throat of people because he can. He's a special talent. Him playing with a lot of passion is a lot of trouble for a lot of people."

Says Green:

"I'm being more vocal with teammates, getting more involved and stepping out of my box a little bit. You have to do that in order to be great. And I feel like I've done enough here to say some things now."

Hue J. pushes A.J.: From 2011-13, Bengals WR A.J. Green had the most catches (260) and second-most yards (3833) of any receiver in NFL history for his first three seasons. But when his name came up during the offseason as No. 2 in the NFL Network's rating of WRs from 2013, behind Calvin Johnson of Detroit, Green received a text message from offensive coordinator Hue Jackson. It was more of a prod than a pat on the back.

"It said, 'Now, let's go be (number) one,'" Green recalls. "One thing about Hue J., he's never satisfied with where I am."

Which is more than fine with Green.

"I knew that text was coming," Green says. "He's pushing me to be better. I want that. No matter what I do or how much I've accomplished these first three years, there's always more I can do, and it's a coach's job to push you to that. I feel like I haven't reached my peak yet. When you get to the point when you feel like you have done everything, it's time for you to hang it up."

Last season, Green set Bengals records for 100-yard receiving games in a campaign (six) and for most consecutive 100-yard games (five). He joined Hall of Famer Tom Fears for fewest games played (38) to hit the triple benchmark of 200 receptions 3000 yards and 20 receiving TDs. In 2012, he became only the second NFL player in what is now a 49-year span to catch a TD pass in nine straight games, joining Hall of Famer Jerry Rice.

But for motivation purposes, Green chooses to take a painful look at his totals from Cincinnati's 0-3 postseason record of the last three years. He has averaged only 53.9 yards with no TDs.

"If I play well, the team plays well," Green says. "I've got to give them that spark in the playoffs, and I haven't done that the whole three years. I've got a lot of regrets about my play in those games, but you can't live in the past."

Best for first four? As noted in the previous item, Bengals WR A.J. Green is first in NFL history for receptions in a player's first three seasons and second for that span in receiving yards.

So what numbers does Green need to reach in 2014 to end the year with the top totals for a receiver's first four seasons?

In receptions, he'll need 83. That would move him from 260 to 343, ahead of Anquan Boldin, the current four-year leader at 342. Certainly that appears within range. Green has had 97 and 98 catches the past two seasons, after grabbing 65 as a rookie.

In receiving yards, Green will need 1564 to overtake Randy Moss, the only player Green has not topped for seasons 1-3. Moss had 5396 yards over his first four seasons, and Green enters his fourth at 3833. A total of 1564 would be a Bengals record, easily topping Chad Johnson's mark of 1440, but that's not to say Green couldn't do it. To stay behind Moss in second place when the four-year total is in, Green would need 1256. That would push him to 5089, ahead of second-place Torry Holt (5088). Green has had more than 1256 receiving yards each of the last two seasons, logging 1350 in 2012 and 1426 last season.

Jones holds top PR spot: Bengals CB Adam Jones leads the NFL for the third straight week in punt return average, at 17.8 on four returns. He had a 45-yarder on Sept. 7 at Baltimore and a 24-yarder on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta. Darren Sproles of Philadelphia is second at 15.4.

Jones did not have a return Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, and with cornerback duties also to perform, he is used situationally by the coaching staff. WR Brandon Tate also returns punts for Cincinnati. That's a factor in Jones' ongoing status for the NFL rankings, because a player must be averaging at least 1.25 returns per team game to qualify for the rankings. Thus, Jones will need at least one return at New England to remain a qualifier through Week 5.

He's not about 'fair': When Bengals CB Adam Jones says he doesn't like to fair catch on punt returns, he's not kidding. He has had 81 returns since his last fair catch, which came for Tennessee on Nov. 16, 2006. He has had 48 returns without a fair catch as a Bengal.

For perspective on those numbers, consider that in 2013, for the full NFL season, there were 58.1 percent as many fair catches (636) as there were punts returned (1094).

Jones has five career punt returns for touchdowns, second-most among active NFL players. He disdains the idea that a simple good return to improve field position is a returner's base goal.

"I'm trying to score," Jones says. "I don't get excited over 10 yards."

Dalton's day different, but good: On Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, for the first time in three games, Bengals quarterback Andy Dalton failed to dazzle with his passer rating. He didn't throw a TD pass on the windy afternoon, and his first interception of the season helped lower his score to a 68.9. Dalton had been at 98.7 and 116.6 in the first two games.

But it's only a "passer" rating, not a "quarterback" rating as it's often mistakenly called, and as a quarterback, Dalton did just fine against the Titans.

Not only did he lead the team to a lopsided win, he became the first QB in Bengals history to catch a touchdown pass, and on that play, it wasn't as if he just grabbed a ball all alone in the end zone.

Quite the contrary, in fact. In the first quarter, with the Bengals leading only 3-0, Dalton lateraled to WR Mohamed Sanu and then slipped out into the flat, awaiting a cross-field toss from Sanu. But the Titans weren't as fooled as Bengals scouting had expected them to be — CB Bledi Wreh-Wilson was right in the area with Dalton — and Dalton beat Wreh-Wilson to the catch on a play where it briefly appeared Dalton might take a hard hit. Then Dalton righted himself and outran other Tennessee pursuers on an 18-yard trip to the end zone. He dove for the pylon and got just over the goal line, avoiding a possible hit by S Michael Griffin.

Not bad for a QB on the receiving end, just as Sanu has shown on that and previous occasions that he's quite a passer for a wideout.

Asked if he had found himself wishing Sanu wouldn't have thrown the ball, given the presence of Wreh-Wilson, Dalton insisted that was not the case.

"I always tell my receivers to go up and make a play when the coverage is tight," Dalton said, "so I guess Mo trusted me to go up and get it. I went and attacked the ball and made a play. I knew there was a chance I'd get hit, but it didn't turn out that way."

With a laugh, Dalton added:

"I always tell the receivers I have the best hands on the team. I catch (shotgun) snaps all the time."

Dalton knew entering this season that he would be under intense scrutiny throughout the campaign, having gained national attention by leading three straight playoff teams but failing thus far to win in postseason. He attracted still more attention when, last month, the Bengals committed to him with a contract extension through 2020. He has handled the spotlight with calm and confidence, and with great play on the field. Starting with the season opener in Baltimore, he has defied one cable sports show that had fingered him as an "overrated" player who would be "exposed" against the Ravens.

The victory over Tennessee improved Dalton's already-best winning percentage for a Bengals starter (minimum 10 games) to .647. He has started all 51 Bengals games since arriving as a second-round draft choice in 2011, and his record is 33-18. In Games 1-2 this season, he became the first QB in franchise history to complete passes of 75 or more yards in consecutive games, going 77 yards to A.J. Green for a fourth-quarter game-winner at Baltimore and going 76 yards to Sanu the following week against Atlanta. He was credited with smelling and beating a blitz on both of the plays.

Regarding the team's long-range 2014 goal — winning in the playoffs — Dalton said:

"This is a long haul, and I can only look ahead and try to keep getting better and helping our team be better. I'm confident in what we have. I know that quarterbacks are ultimately judged by success in the playoffs, and I'm not complaining about that. It's just the way it is. But maybe some people overlook just how hard it is to get to the playoffs. Our fans have come to expect that of us, and it's not that way in every city. I'm proud of what we've accomplished but I know we — and I — have a lot more to do."

No surprise to the teachers: Well before QB Andy Dalton's successful 2014 start, his coaches pretty much predicted it. They said his work in daily preseason practice foretold what figured to be his best season yet.

"I know he's better," said quarterbacks coach Ken Zampese. "I can see it in his decisiveness, his details, the ball placement, the confidence. What strikes me is the consistency. Something may not be right, but we bounce back quickly. Nothing lingers from one bad play to causing another bad one."

If there was any kind of a transition period with Dalton moving into new coordinator Hue Jackson's offensive scheme, it didn't last long.

"I think we have a bond, which is important," Jackson says. "Andy's getting to know me and I'm getting to know him. I like everything about him. What I'm most proud of is, he has allowed me to coach him. I've seen some guys bristle when change happens. He hasn't blinked, and none of the guys on offense have, and that's been good to see."

Says Dalton: "It's been a really easy transition. Hue and I started this with a good relationship, him being on the staff (in other roles) the last two years. Hue has made it clear that I'm his guy, that I'm going to be running everything, and that's great. Everything with Hue is about the quarterback position, that he's the leader of this team."

Dalton signed up through 2020: Two weeks into preseason, the Bengals signed QB Andy Dalton to a contract extension running through the 2020 season. His original contract had run through 2014.

A second-round Bengals draft choice in 2011, Dalton has led the Bengals to the playoffs in each of his three previous seasons, including an AFC North Division championship in '13. In '13, he set franchise season records for passing yards (4293) and TD passes (33).

"Andy is being rewarded for his accomplishments with a significant contract," said Katie Blackburn, Bengals executive vice-president, "and we are pleased to have a deal that will make him a key part of our team for a number of years."

Dalton in 2013 won two AFC Offensive Player of the Week awards and was named AFC Offensive Player of the Month for October. He joined S David Fulcher as the only Bengals to win three AFC weekly or monthly awards in a season.

"It's stating the obvious that this is a key move for the ongoing success of our team," said Bengals head coach Marvin Lewis, "I congratulate our front office, and Andy and his representatives, for coming together to make this happen in a constructive way for the football team. Andy is still a young player (26), he has led us to the playoffs three straight years, and by far we have not seen the best of him yet."

"It's great that the Bengals have shown this confidence in me," Dalton said. "This is only a beginning. We have higher goals than just making the playoffs, and it's my job to lead us there."

The Bengals and Dalton have received praise for structuring a contract that preserves the team's ability to retain other key players under the salary cap while still rewarding the quarterback handsomely.

"That's important to Andy," said OT Andrew Whitworth. "He understands the game. He understands what makes it go. He won in college at a place (TCU) where not many people won as much as he did. He understands that he needs other guys that help him win. He came in as a rookie and played on a team when it lost its franchise quarterback and was supposed to go 0-16."

Whitworth's reference was to 2011, when the Bengals opened the season with QB Carson Palmer holding out. The team was widely forecast as a last-place finisher, but Dalton, a second-round draft choice, led a 9-7 playoff season and earned a Pro Bowl berth.

A parallel for Dalton? Bengals QB Andy Dalton hasn't yet won a playoff game, but he has led the team to three berths in three seasons, and that's a far better start than most — including one Peyton Manning, Denver's Hall-of-Fame lock of a QB. Manning needed his first five seasons (1998-2002) to lead the Indianapolis Colts to three playoff berths, and the Colts were eliminated in the first round all three times ('99, '00, '02).

Manning led his first playoff wins (two) in 2003, his sixth season as a Colt.

Dalton's playoff passer rating is not a point of pride at 56.2, but head coach Marvin Lewis points out that Cincinnati's highly rated defenses allowed opposing QBs to post an aggregate 94.9 rating in the three postseason contests.

"So obviously it's not all on Andy," Lewis says. "We all know the way it works, how the pressure falls on the quarterback, but that doesn't mean it's always valid. The pressure is on us as an entire team to improve."

Dalton has had no bigger backer than Bengals president Mike Brown. Prior to the Aug. 4 completion of Dalton's new contract, Brown said:

"I like him on the field; he's steady Eddie," Brown said. "He competes. He doesn't do stupid things. He keeps us focused. He makes us a winning team. He's won nine games, then 10, then 11. That's pretty good. Everybody knows we didn't win in the playoffs, and we have to get over that hump. And we are counting on Andy to get us to that point."

Dalton has a history of earning statistical comparisons with the biggest names among NFL QBs. For example, he threw more TD passes (80) over his three seasons than anyone except Manning and Drew Brees. But Brown takes the comparison with the best to off-field matters as well.

"I think he is an exceptional person," Brown said. "Nobody has more respect in our building than he. I would tell you that of all the quarterbacks we have had, he is respected by his teammates as much as any of them."

Apprised of Brown's remarks, Dalton said:

"It means a lot to hear him say that. To know I have support from the top down, that is exactly what you want. And saying how everyone in the organization respects me ... not that I doubted that, but it's really good to hear."

Andy by the numbers: More of the reasons why QB Andy Dalton draws such high praise from his bosses.

CAREER:

- His 33-18 W-L record as a starter gives him a .647 winning percentage, best in Bengals history for a QB with 10 or more starts.

- He is one of only five starting QBs in NFL history to lead a team to the playoffs his first three seasons.

• His 80 TD passes from 2011-13 stand as third-most in NFL history for a player in his first three seasons, trailing only Dan Marino (98) and Peyton Manning (85).

• He was on the throwing end for the vast majority of A.J. Green's 260 catches from 2011-13, most in NFL history for a player in his first three seasons.

LAST SEASON:

• He joined Peyton Manning and Cam Newton as the only QBs in league history to pass for 3000 yards in their first three seasons.

• He broke Bengals season records set by Carson Palmer for touchdown passes (33) and passing yards (4293).

• He finished the season with a passer rating of 88.8, improving that mark for the third straight season. He ranked fifth in the AFC.

• He joined S David Fulcher as the only Bengals to win three of the NFL's weekly or monthly AFC offensive player awards in a season.

• He became the first Bengals passer to throw for 300 or more yards in four consecutive games.

THIS SEASON:

• In Games 1-2, he became the first Bengals QB to throw completions of 75-plus yards in consecutive games.

• In Game 3 vs. Tennessee, he became the first Bengals QB to catch a touchdown pass, beating tight coverage to convert an 18-yard score on an aerial from WR Mohamed Sanu.

Dalton rules against NFC: The Bengals' next home game is Oct. 12 against NFC foe Carolina, so excuse Andy Dalton fans for having their mouths watering.

In 13 career games against NFC clubs, Dalton has a 10-3 record, a winning percentage of .769. His three losses have come by a total of 12 points, and his 10 wins have come by an average margin of 13.1. He has thrown for 10 TDs against NFC teams since the NFC's last interception against him.

Dalton's 10th win against the NFC came Sept. 14, in a 24-10 decision over Atlanta. Here's a roundup of his history against NFC opposition:

Duo of dreams? One is super-quick, shifty and packs surprising power. The other is powerful first, but with surprising speed and agility. The smaller guy is Bengals HB Giovani Bernard, the bigger one is HB Jeremy Hill, and together they promise great things for the 2014 offense.

On Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, they scored three of Cincinnati's four touchdowns, Bernard on a pair of one-yard runs and Hill on a four-yarder. None of the three plays were uncontested by the Titans defense.

"When you're near the goal line, it's not so much about your size, but your determination," said Bernard. "You've got to want it more than the other guy."

Bernard (three) and Hill (two) have combined for five of Cincinnati's eight TDs this season. On Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, they combined for 86 rushing yards on 21 carries, and the week before, against Atlanta, their yardage numbers were more dazzling. Bernard, the second-year pro running in the No. 1 HB spot, had 169 yards from scrimmage against the Falcons, rushing 27-for-90 with a TD and catching five passes for an additional 79. Both yardage numbers led the team. Hill, the rookie second-round draft choice, rushed 15-for-74 with a TD and added two receptions for 22 yards.

Bernard was his familiar dynamic self against the Falcons, twice hurdling tacklers for extra yardage and turning a short dump pass in the second quarter into a 46-yard gain. Finishing the same drive as his long receiving gain, he bulled four yards for a TD and a 10-3 Bengals lead.

Hill (6-1, 235) is the biggest back on whom the Bengals have spent a high draft pick since 248-pound Pete Johnson in 1977 (also second round). He has plenty of power for crucial short-yardage plays, and he set an LSU career record for yards per carry (6.25). Last season, he had six rushes of 50 or more yards. He capped his career with 216 rushing yards in the Outback Bowl vs. Iowa. Also last season, he averaged 9.8 yards on 26 receptions.

"Obviously Jeremy's bigger than me," says Bernard. "I'm faster than him. I'll take that one. But he's a great back. We're not fighting for whatever. We want to help the team win. We both have that mindset, and that's good to have. It's not about one guy getting more carries than the other. It's about helping the team win."

Since taking over for 2014 as Bengals offensive coordinator, Hue Jackson has made no secret of a priority to improve a Bengals ground game that last year ranked 18th in yards per game (109.7) and 28th in yards per rush (3.6).

Look out, Brooks: OK, so there are only three games in the books for 2014. But mark down Bengals HB Giovani Bernard at least on the "watch list" to threaten one of the most enduring records in franchise history.

The mark in question is yards from scrimmage in a season. HB James Brooks set the bar in 1986 with 1773 yards (1087 rushing, 686 receiving), and no one else has come within 150 of that. The No. 2 figure is 1609 (1311 rushing, 298 receiving) by HB Corey Dillon in 2002.

But Bernard has 333 yards through three games (55-for-185 rushing and 12-for-148 receiving). That projects to 1776 for the season, three more than Brooks' record total.

Bernard has dipped in the NFL total scrimmage yards rankings, due to the Bengals' early bye week, but in yards per team game (111.0), he ranks third in the AFC and seventh in the NFL. The NFL leader in yards per team game is DeMarco Murray of Dallas (150.5), and the AFC leader is Le'Veon Bell of Pittsburgh (142.5).

Bernard and HB Jeremy Hill combined for 265 scrimmage yards on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, most by two Bengals backs in one game since Dec. 3, 2000, when Corey Dillon (216) and Brandon Bennett (70) combined for 286. The Bernard-Hill total was more than the scrimmage yards total of any combo of Bengals backs since Dec. 22, 2002, when Dillon (142), Nick Luchey (65) and Bennett (64) combined for 271.

Run hard and speak softly: Bengals HB Jeremy Hill, whose football accomplishments are detailed in the previous item, has been a winner with fans and news media as well. Throughout his early time as a Bengal, he has shown an appealing blend of confidence and rookie humility.

"I'm glad Coach Hue (Jackson) is trusting me with responsibilities, like making those key short-yardage plays," Hill says. "I pride myself on being a 100 percent guy on short yardage and around the goal line. I want to earn his trust. I've got to do a better job as a receiver. I didn't make a couple catches I should have earlier in the preseason."

Hill also has acknowledged torturing himself over a fumble in an early August practice drill. In the rough Southeastern Conference, he fumbled only once in 371 career touches, and his offense recovered it.

"It's common knowledge; you just can't fumble," Hill said. "The coaches didn't really come down hard on me, but it's the kind of thing you really don't need to say anything about. Those things happen, but it's a very serious matter. I just want to make sure that I don't make the same mistake twice."

One more throw, and he's still Mr. Perfect: Bengals WR Mohamed Sanu threw one pass as a rookie in 2012. The perfectly thrown ball went 50 yards in the air and produced a 73-yard TD to WR A.J. Green at Washington. The play left Sanu with a perfect score on the NFL's passer rating computer — 158.3.

Last season, Sanu's only pass produced a 25-yard gain to HB Giovani Bernard vs. Cleveland. That was good enough to keep his career rating at the magic 158.3, and when then-offensive coordinator Jay Gruden was asked after the game about Sanu possibly throwing more passes, Gruden joked that Sanu "might not want to risk messing up his perfect score."

But that's not Sanu's call, of course, and coordinator Hue Jackson has called for two Sanu passes this season. On Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, Sanu did what he had to do. He threw a ball more than 50 yards in the air to WR Brandon Tate, precisely placed beyond coverage for a 50-yard gain, and his career rating stayed right there at 158.3. And on Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, Sanu completed an 18-yard TD pass to QB Andy Dalton. He got some help on the play, as Dalton made a nice catch and a nice run to the end zone, but the ratings computer didn't care. It left Sanu yet again with the magic 158.3 as his career rating.

His career passing totals are now four-for-four for 166 yards, with two TDs and no INTs. He is the only Bengals WR ever to throw a TD pass.

Beyond the yards gained and points scored, Sanu's passes have impressed onlookers with their arc, perfect spirals and accuracy. It is no exaggeration to say he literally can throw it like a top quarterback. When Dalton was asked in his Atlanta post-game news conference if he has ever advised Sanu "on throwing mechanics or release point," Dalton said:

"Absolutely not. He doesn't even warm up. You just get him the ball and let him throw."

On both of Sanu's completions this season, Dalton took the center snap and pitched laterals to Sanu, who appeared to be running a reverse until he stopped and threw the aerial. On Sanu's 73-yarder to Green as a rookie, he took a direct center snap in a shotgun formation.

Mo's day job: Passing exploits aside (see previous item), Mohamed Sanu's main job remains catching the ball, and he's doing just fine. He has 12 catches for 164 yards in the first three games, including a 76-yard TD on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta.

Sanu also has a two-point conversion catch. He beat tight coverage at Baltimore and claimed a contested ball.

After the Tennessee game, in which he caught five-for-44 and threw an 18-yard TD pass to QB Andy Dalton, Sanu was asked if offensive coordinator Hue Jackson "has just scratched the surface" with what Sanu can do for the offense.

"I just have to take advantage of every opportunity Coach Jackson provides me," Sanu replied.

Sanu's performance this season has been doubly important due to the absence of WR Marvin Jones from the lineup. Jones, who seesawed with Sanu in the No. 2 WR role over 2012-13, has been out since suffering a foot fracture in practice on Aug. 9. But it's hoped that Jones, who caught 10 TD passes last season, can return to action at New England.

'Tacklin' Tez' hopes to be back for Pats: Bengals LB Vontaze Burfict is looking for his biggest season yet of his three years in the NFL, but he had difficulty staying on the field in September. He was sidelined with a concussion in the second quarter of the season opener at Baltimore, and though he was cleared to return to action Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, he left that game in the third quarter with another concussion. He was held out of the Sept. 21 Tennessee game, and his status for New England has yet to be determined.

Whenever his return may be, it can't come soon enough for the Cincinnati defense. Bypassed by NFL teams in the 2012 NFL Draft, Burfict has established himself as one of the most productive college free agent signees by any NFL team in recent years. He has led the Bengals in tackles by wide margins in each of his two seasons, and he led the NFL in tackles in 2013 according to leaguewide press box statistics. He was credited by the Bengals coaching staff last season with 204 tackles, 94 more than the second-place player, and he was voted to the Pro Bowl and to a second-team spot on the Associated Press All-Pro team.

On Aug. 27, the Bengals signed Burfict to a contract extension running through the 2017 season. Burfict's original contract ran through this season, and had that contract run out, he would have been a restricted free agent for 2015.

Burfict logged four tackles in each of the first two games before being sidelined. He had arguably the defense's best individual play in the Baltimore game, stopping RB Bernard Pierce for no gain at the Ravens 20 in the second quarter and forcing a fumble he recovered himself at the Ravens 23. The Bengals converted the turnover into a field goal for a 15-0 lead.

"Vontaze is a special talent; he has shown us that from his first day here," said head coach Marvin Lewis. "He is a load physically (6-1, 255) and he's extremely competitive, but what really makes him stand out is the instinct and feel he has for the game. It's something born in him, you can't coach a player to naturally react the way he does in all situations. Signing him as we did is a great move for the future of our defense."

Burfict also led the Bengals last season in tackles-for-loss (eight), and he tied for the front-seven lead in passes defended (10). He had 3.0 sacks, two fumble recoveries and one forced fumble. On Nov. 17 vs. Cleveland, he scored a TD on a 13-yard return of a fumble that he forced, and he also had 18 tackles, winning AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors.

"It's great to have this deal done and know I'm going to be here beyond this season," Burfict said. "We can have a great defense again this year, even better than the last couple years."

The Bengals could likely have retained Burfict for 2015 through restricted free agency, and he could have been retained for 2016 as a designated franchise player, at club option. But the club chose instead to work with Burfict on the extension.

"It's unusual to sign a player this early in his career to a contract extension, but Vontaze is a player who merits this," said Katie Blackburn, Bengals executive vice-president. "He has proven to be an exceptional find for us, and we are happy to reward him now for his accomplishments. It's good for him and good for our team."

The Burfict bandwagon: Bengals LB Vontaze Burfict, in only his third pro season, has emerged not only as a Pro Bowl player physically, but as the defense's emotional leader.

Here's a sampling of kudos from teammates and coaches:

- Defensive coordinator Paul Guenther: "I love the kid. I really do. I'll coach very few guys like him in my career. I realize that."

- 11th-year DE Robert Geathers: "He's intense, and everybody feeds off of his energy. He's a football-smart guy, and when you're prepared like that and have his energy, it doesn't matter how old you are."

- S Reggie Nelson: "If you don't want to play with a guy like that next to you, I don't know what to tell you. I love playing next to him."

- LB Jayson DiManche: "He's as confident as any player I've ever seen at any level, and that's what really impresses me. You'll never know if and when he makes a mistake out there, because he's always going so fast and playing so hard. His attitude and effort level are off the charts. That's something as a young linebacker that you try to emulate. It's crazy because Vontaze is actually younger than me."

- CB Darqueze Dennard: "All of the great ones pretty much have that personality, that combative edge that Vontaze does. Lawrence Taylor ... Ray Lewis ... you see the passion in all of that barking and hollering, and you see that in Vontaze. I love it, and I think the rest of the guys appreciate that. He motivates guys and gets them going. When you see a player who is running around having fun and screaming and hollering after he makes plays, it makes you want to go out there and have fun with him."

Burfict is known for taking his edge to practice as well as games, giving teammates some verbal and physical jabs.

"You have to have fun," said Burfict. "You want to make practice it competitive and have fun with it and talk crap. When I talk to Andy (Dalton) or Gio (Bernard), it spices things up. You don't think about the reps, you just think about competing and trying to win that rep. I feel like bringing a bit of an edge and talking a little trash makes us play better and faster."

75 is one popular number: As this week began, the Bengals Pro Shop had taken more than 10,000 orders for the No. 75 jersey of Bengals DT Devon Still. The third-year pro has touched hearts across the nation with his openness regarding his daughter — Leah, age four — being diagnosed with cancer.

Sales of the jerseys will benefit Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center, supporting pediatric cancer research. Bulk buyers to date include two NFL head coaches, New Orleans' Sean Payton and Detroit's Jim Caldwell.

Still has played in the line rotation in the last two games and has five tackles.

Gilberry a gift from 'the street': Though Bengals LB Vontaze Burfict is widely known as the most productive undrafted player the Bengals have ever signed as a rookie college free agent, DE Wallace Gilberry is proving he deserves recognition in a related realm — among the best NFL veterans ever picked up by the Bengals "off the street."

Signed by the Bengals in September 2012, after being released by Tampa Bay, Gilberry hit the ground as a playmaker and has not let up. Though not a starter in '12 or '13, he ranked third on the '12 team in sacks (6.5) and tied for the team lead (7.5) last season. Also from '12-13, he had three fumble recoveries, one of which he returned for a touchdown, and two forced fumbles.

His performance was such that the Bengals didn't overly fret when salary cap reality prevented them from making an all-out effort to retain talented DE Michael Johnson for 2014. Johnson moved on to Tampa Bay as a free agent, and Gilberry has moved in as a starter for the first time in his seven seasons.

And how did Gilberry respond? Well, he virtually hammered the nails in Baltimore's coffin in the season opener. With 1:09 to play and Baltimore looking for a tying TD, facing third-and-four at the Bengals 16, Gilberry sacked Joe Flacco for a five-yard loss. And on the next play, fourth-and-nine from the 21, Gilberry and S Reggie Nelson combined to sack Flacco again. Game over, except for two required kneel-downs by Bengals QB Andy Dalton to run out the clock.

Gilberry also had a pass defended in the second quarter, batting down a Flacco aerial to help force a punt. He tied for the line lead for the game in tackles (four). For the season, Gilberry has nine tackles and a pass defended, along with his 1.5 sacks.

Gilberry gave credit to new defensive coordinator Paul Guenther for freeing him up to make plays.

"He's very creative," Gilberry said of Guenther. "He'll find a way to get you open. That's one thing I can say about P. He's going to dial them up. It's up to you to execute and get the job done."

Says head coach Marvin Lewis:

"Wallace has seized the opportunity. I think he sees the light at the end of the tunnel, and he's not going to let somebody pass him up. He really has done an excellent job of putting on display that he's the player that deserves to go out there first in our rotation. We're going to roll guys through on the defensive line, as we always have, but Wallace wants to be the guy goes out there first. He's stayed out on the practice field when he's had some nicks, because he wants to be out there."

Gilberry had 22.5 sacks in four college seasons (2004-07), and he left Alabama ranked second in the school's storied history in tackles-for-loss, trailing only future NFL Hall of Famer Derrick Thomas. Gilberry entered the NFL in 2008 undrafted, signed originally by the N.Y. Giants. He saw action in 43 games over four seasons (2008-11) with Kansas City, productive but never a regular starter. He went to Tampa Bay as an unrestricted free agent in 2012. It was to the Bengals' ultimate benefit that his move to the Bucs did not work out as planned.

Two ways to build a defense: The Bengals were the third-ranked defense in the NFL last season. They had strong play at linebacker and in the secondary. But the pre-NFL pedigrees of the LB and DB units were strikingly different, and they remain so in 2014.

The LB corps has a majority of players who entered the NFL undrafted, as college free agents, and the secondary is laden not only with draft choices, but first-round draft choices.

Pro Bowler Vontaze Burfict of course heads the LB group. His story is now widely known. Early in his college career at Arizona State, he was touted as a possible NFL first-round draft choice. But he later acquired the tags of being undisciplined and out of shape, and he was bypassed in the draft. He has disproven those raps with the Bengals, however, and the WLB now stands among the most productive CFA signees of any NFL team in any year.

Emmanuel Lamur has opened the season as the No. 1 SLB, and Vincent Rey, a strong contender for playing time at MLB or OLB, also were originally college free agent signees with the Bengals.

Third-year pro Lamur, big and athletic at 6-4 and 240 pounds, leads the team in tackles (21) through three games. He had been tabbed for a significant role last season but was lost for the year to a preseason shoulder injury. Not only was Lamur a college free agent in 2012, he had to earn that by starting rookie minicamp as an unsigned tryout player.

Rey, a fourth-year pro, broke out last season with 54 tackles, 4.0 sacks, and two INTs (one for a TD). He started three games as an injury replacement at MLB and saw considerable action otherwise in the defensive rotation. Rey has nine tackles and two passes defended this season. He started Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee in place of Burfict, who was out due to a concussion.

College free agent LB Jayson DiManche found a significant role as a rookie last season, finishing second in special teams tackles (12) and blocking a punt that the Bengals returned for a TD. He has played in all three games this season.

Among seven LBs presently on the roster, the only drafted players are No. 1 MLB Rey Mauluga (second round, 2009), OLB Sean Porter (fourth round, '13) and WLB Marquis Flowers (sixth round, '14).

Nine of the 10 DBs on the roster were drafted, and six of those were first-round selections. Among the six are five CBs and one safety. The CBs are Leon Hall (Bengals, 2007), Terence Newman (Dallas, '03), Adam Jones (Tennessee, '05), Dre Kirkpatrick (Bengals, '12) and Darqueze Dennard (Bengals, '14). The safety is Reggie Nelson (Jacksonville, '07).

Another DB, safety Taylor Mays, was a second-round NFL draft pick. The only undrafted secondary member is CB Chris Lewis-Harris, a college free agent signee in 2012 from Tennessee-Chattanooga.

On the Cincinnati defensive line, eight of the nine players were drafted, but none in the first round. The only undrafted player among the linemen is starting DE Wallace Gilberry, a CFA signee by the New York Giants in 2008.

Aggressiveness calls for a fine line: The Bengals aren't out to beat each other up during practice, but neither will they risk getting beaten up on Sundays for having prepared in too soft a manner. So when contact occurs in practice that goes a bit beyond the design of the work, defensive coordinator Paul Guenther looks the other way to some extent.

"We're not playing against the Bengals, they're not on our schedule, and we never want our guys doing stupid things," Guenther says. "But some things happen in practice. You can't tell a dog not to eat red meat."

Tough but smart is the defense's goal. There's one time when it's OK to be a bully — when you're out to establish your physical dominance during a game, and that concept is one of the ones driving the defense to not rest on its laurels after finishing third in the NFL's 2013 yardage rankings.

"Until we're No. 1, there's always room for improvement," says starting strong safety George Iloka, "and this year we want to be smart bullies. Our mentality is to play aggressive and physical, but we've got to be smart. We've got to know when to take chances. We've got to know if it's third-and-1, we've got to know if it's fourth-and-1, we've got to know if we're backed up that they're going to try to give you a hard count. Little things like that. You don't want to be too aggressive where you're hurting yourself."

Last year the Bengals were a bit on the high side in defensive penalties, ranking 11th with 41 infractions.

"You want to cut down on penalties," Iloka says. "You want to cut down on mistakes. But it's not even those things. There are other aspects to playing smart. Let's say it's third-and-4, and all week we've practiced that this team in this formation is going to run a seam route. Why are you going to be overaggressive and jump the out route? Just be a smart bully. You're smart, and when the time comes to make the hit ... you bully them and you make the play."

Adds Guenther:

"I like how passionate these guys are, how smart they are and how flexible they can be. I'm just really hammering home being a smart football team."

Call him "Unsinkable": Leon Hall has made such progress in his rehab from a right Achilles tear suffered in Game 7 last season, he has reclaimed the starting RCB position he has held since 2007. Thus, he is a viable candidate for an unofficial NFL "first" — first player to return to a prominent lineup position with two Achilles tears in his history. He has started all three games and has 11 tackles, one INT and three passes defended. Hall this season continues to be a strong run defender, an asset sometimes overlooked in comparison to his coverage skills.

Hall logged the 24th INT of his career on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, grabbing a pass deflected by LB Vontaze Burfict at the Falcons 40 in the third quarter. The Bengals turned the turnover into a TD drive for a 24-3 lead. Hall ranks fifth in Bengals history in INTs, and his next pick will tie him with Lemar Parrish for fourth place at 25.

Hall suffered a left Achilles tear in Game 9 of 2011 — and returned for the '12 season opener. And when head coach Marvin Lewis was asked whether he could recall another player putting two such injuries behind him, Lewis said he could not.

"I don't know that there's been history of that," Lewis said. "All I can say is that Leon again has been very, very diligent and worked very, very hard. His goal was to make it back to practice Day 1 of training camp and to start in the season opener, and he did it."

Hall could log his 100th Bengals game and 100th Bengals start in 2014. He is now at 95 and 89.

"I'm confident my Achilles is where I want it to be, where it should be at this point," Hall says. "Really, there was never really a doubt in my mind. It was just trying to be patient enough to go through that long process again. The long days of (repetitive) calf raises, every day of coming in and seeing Nick (trainer Nick Cosgray) in the morning, being with him for hours day after day, not letting it get to me and mentally staying into it. I knew the physical part of it as far as my strength and running would come in time."

Who said 'T-New' was old? Bengals CB Terence Newman turned 36 three days before the season opener. He missed the last three games of last season, plus the Wild Card playoff, due to a knee injury. His competition among Cincinnati's CB corps includes four first-round NFL draft picks (Adam Jones 2005, Leon Hall '07, Dre Kirkpatrick '11 and Darqueze Dennard '14).

But Newman himself was a No. 1, selected by Dallas in 2003, and no one is budging him from the starting lineup. Through three games, he leads the team in passes defended (five) and ranks tied for second in tackles (19). Newman is in his third Bengals season, following a nine-year Cowboys career in which he was selected for two Pro Bowls.

"I just work, man. I like the game. I have fun with it," Newman said. "This year I'm challenging myself. I've challenged myself since I've been here, but I'm taking a bigger challenge as far as helping others and trying to show them as far as what to do and how to do it. Go to practice and kind of how to work out and what not. I've always been that way, but I'm trying to take that step to the next level, and practice harder. That way, when I get to the games, it's completely second nature."

Newman has been to the playoffs in each of his two Bengals seasons, but the team has lost in the first round both times.

"Any time you lose a playoff game and you get to the age that I am, and the years in your career that I am, you don't know if you're going to get another chance," he said. "I'm trying to do everything that I can to get back there and get past that hump."

Way to work: To understate things, Paul Alexander has seen a few players come and go over 20 seasons as Bengals offensive line coach. And Alexander insists he isn't overstating when he says of G Kevin Zeitler:

"Hardest-working guy I ever coached."

Zeitler, a first-round Bengals draft choice in 2012, has been the starter at RG since day one of his career. He isn't letting it go to his head. He's physically trimmer entering 2014 and says, "I see things on every play that I that tell me I could be that much better. I just want to make more of an impact, make the right corrections, and be more of an impact guard."

Says Alexander:

"He's a machine. He's the Energizer Bunny. He's always in the weight room early; he's always hustling and finishing in practice. He's in range to have a top, top season. The third season is huge for NFL offensive linemen."

Alexander's advice for Zeitler going forward? It might be that sometimes, you can chill out just a little.

"He's very demanding of himself," Alexander says. "He has to overcome that sometimes. At some point you have to accept there's a margin of error — you won't always be perfect — and be realistic."

Zeitler's hard work has been moved to the training room lately, however. He was sidelined Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta with a calf strain and was inactive on Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee. His status for New England game is to be determined.

Huber big in booting Titans: In Games 1-2, the Bengals cheered the regular-season return of record-setting P Kevin Huber, who missed the last two games last season and the Wild Card playoff due to injuries. And on Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee, the cheers went up a couple notches on the volume meter.

Huber not only averaged 49.3 yards on four punts against the Titans, he had three inside-20 kicks — downed at the two, the 11 and the four. His kick downed at the two in the second quarter helped set up a Titans punt from their four, and Tennessee was called for a holding penalty in the end zone, giving the Bengals a safety for a 12-0 lead. Huber's punt to the 11 came just minutes later and helped set up a Cincinnati TD for a 19-0 lead. Huber's net punting average for the day was a stellar 49.0.

For the season Huber ranks ninth in the NFL in net average (42.4). He has a 43.3 gross average, with eight inside-20s and no touchbacks.

Over his five-plus seasons, Huber has commandeered substantial space in the franchise record book. The Cincinnati native and University of Cincinnati product is the franchise record holder for career gross punting average (44.2) and net punting average (39.2). En route to those numbers, in 2012, he set club season records for gross (46.6) and net (42.0).

Last season Huber had key late punts in wins in Games 5-7 (vs. New England, at Buffalo, at Detroit), and he has been a reliable holder for place kicks throughout his Bengals career.

"It's a great comfort as a coach to have Kevin back," said head coach Marvin Lewis. "We ask Kevin to do special things with the ball, and he has delivered. Every time you see the returner catch a ball on the boundary and step out of bounds, Kevin's done his job again. That's what we want all the time. We want that ball pinned to the boundary as much as we can. He doesn't get the opportunity like some guys just to stand back there and boom the football. We want that ball put in certain spots all the time."

A fifth-round Bengals 2009 draft choice, Huber was the first kicking specialist selected that year, after a University of Cincinnati career in which he won one national gross punting title and twice led the nation twice in net punting.

Huber near top in differential: With eight inside-20 punts and no touchbacks this season, Bengals P Kevin Huber ranks tied for third in the NFL in differential between the two (plus-8). Kansas City's Dustin Colquitt is the league leader at plus 10 (10-0), and New England's Ryan Allen is second at plus-nine (10-1).

Huber holds the Bengals career record for best ratio of inside-20 punts to touchbacks, at 3.92-to-1 (141-36). The second-best ratio belongs to Kyle Larson, another Marvin Lewis player, who had a 3.41-to-1 ratio (109-32) from 2004-08.

It was almost a first: With Andy Dalton pass completions of 77 yards to A.J. Green on Sept. 7 at Baltimore and 76 yards to Mohamed Sanu on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, the Bengals posted completions of 75-plus yards in consecutive games for only the second time in franchise history.

The first instance was in 1969, the franchise's second season, played in the American Football League. On Sept. 21, Greg Cook passed 78 yards to Bob Trumpy in a 34-20 win vs. San Diego, and on Sept. 28, Sam Wyche passed 80 yards to Trumpy in a 24-19 win vs. Kansas City.

And Dalton, of course, is the only individual Bengals QB to get 75-plus completions in consecutive games, just as Trumpy is the only receiver in that category.

TV streak at 140: In each of the last 140 Cincinnati TV ratings weeks that have included a Bengals regular-season or postseason broadcast — dating back to the 2004 season — the Bengals have ruled the Cincinnati airwaves. They have been the top-rated show among all programming in the Cincinnati market, and usually by a wide margin.

The streak hit 140 when Cincinnati rankings were released for the Bengals' Sept. 21 game vs. Tennessee. It drew a rating of 30.4, first for the week by a wide margin.

The rating number indicates the percentage of market households tuned to the game — including those not watching TV at the time.

The streak began on Dec. 5, 2004, when a wild Bengals win at Baltimore outpooled all other programs. The highest local Bengals rating during the streak has been 45.5 for a home playoff game vs. Pittsburgh on Jan. 8, 2006.

The high rating of Bengals games has occurred despite the fact most games are played in the afternoon, when overall TV viewership is not as high as it is during the evening.

The Georgia connection: The Bengals have five players from the University of Georgia on the 53-player roster. It's not as many as at some points last year, when Cincinnati had as many as seven ex-Bulldogs on the 53, but it's still a significant group. Start with WR A.J. Green and DT Geno Atkins, the most decorated Cincinnati players on each side of the ball. Then add in another starter (LG Clint Boling), a still very active 11th-year veteran (DE Robert Geathers), and a promising second-year player (S Shawn Williams).

Last year's total of seven ex-Bulldogs established a Bengals franchise high for most players on the roster at one time from one school. This year's total of five is two more than any other school. Two other schools have three — Alabama (DE Wallace Gilberry, CB Dre Kirkpatrick, OT Andre Smith) and North Carolina (HB Giovani Bernard, C Russell Bodine and WR Brandon Tate).

Asked about the connection with Georgia, coach Marvin Lewis said:

"I would just say that the coaching staff there, under Coach Mark Richt, has done a great job teaching their guys to play aggressive, attacking football. Whether it be offense or defense, they're all no-nonsense guys. So we really like their work ethic, how they handle and carry themselves as people, and that says a lot about the program. I think you guys (media) would agree that they're personable players. They're always approachable, they've been trained the right way, and the Georgia people just do a great job of that."

Georgia's pipeline to the Bengals has been a relatively recent connection. On the Bengals' Alumni List, Georgia ranks only tied for ninth among schools in most players to have made the Cincinnati all-time roster. The Bulldog total is 14. The runaway leader for producing Bengals is Ohio State, at 27. Florida is second at 18. Tied for third at 17 are the University of Cincinnati and Michigan.

NFC beware: The Bengals are 16-6-1 in their last 22 home games against NFC teams, for a winning percentage of .717. The last 22 of the 23 games have been played under head coach Marvin Lewis (15-6-1). Going back a bit farther, the Bengals are 27-13-1 (.671) at home against the NFC since 1993.

The Bengals played and won their first 2014 home game against the NFC on Sept. 14, defeating Atlanta 24-10. Still on the home schedule from the NFC is Carolina, set for Oct. 12.

Streaks and service leaders: NT Domata Peko claims the current roster's longest streak for consecutive Bengals starts (70), and his 70 straight games played also tops the roster.

DE Robert Geathers has the most total Bengals games played on the current roster (143). OT Andrew Whitworth has the most total Bengals starts (123). The player with the most total NFL games (170) and starts (168) is CB Terence Newman.

All streaks and totals above include regular-season and postseason games.

Is it the pep talks? The Bengals are 11-2 under Marvin Lewis when a game is tied at halftime, including 3-0 last season. Here's the history:

Additional notes include:

- The Bengals played to five halftime ties in 2003, Lewis' first season, and did not have another until '09.
- Lewis' first victory from a halftime tie was also his first Bengals win, a 21-14 decision at Cleveland in Game 4 of '03.
- The Bengals are 64-22-1 under Lewis when leading at halftime but stand only 18-60-0 when trailing.

A stat that matters: For the Bengals term of coach Marvin Lewis (2003-present), a plus-differential in turnovers reflects a big plus in the win column. And the reverse has gone for a minus.

The Bengals are 58-13-1 in the regular season under Lewis with a plus, for an .813 winning percentage. The Bengals were plus-1 in their win Sept. 21 vs. Tennessee. But the Bengals are 12-54 under Lewis when posting a minus differential.

"It makes a huge difference," Lewis says. "You see it game after game in the NFL. You've got to possess the football. If you possess the football, good things can happen. If you turn the ball over to them, you've got a harder day."

The Bengals' experience with turnovers under Lewis is backed up by league numbers. Since the start of the 2003 season, Lewis' first as head coach, here are the records of teams with varying turnover differentials.

(NOTE: Minus differentials are not included because they are the exact reverse of the plus figure for the same numbers.)

DIFFERENTIAL	W-L-T	PCT.
Plus-1.....	702-310-2	.693
Plus-2.....	562-110-0	.836
Plus-3.....	315-32-1	.907
Plus-4.....	177-5-0	.973
Plus-5 or more.....	86-3-0	.966

In Week 4 play, teams with a plus went 11-1, a winning percentage of .917. In Week 2, teams with a plus were 13-0. The lowest winning percentage this season for plus teams was .667, from a 10-5 record in Week 1. For the season, plus teams are 42-10 (.808). Since 2003, teams with any plus have a combined winning percentage of .800. The combined record is 1840-460-3.

And when it's even? The Bengals are 23-18 in head coach Marvin Lewis' full tenure in games when the turnover differential has been even, for a winning percentage of .561. The Bengals have won six of their last eight with even differential, dating back to 2012.

Uniform watch: The Bengals are scheduled to wear white jerseys and white pants at New England.

In 2004, when the Bengals made their last significant uniform redesign, the team has had a number of color options for jerseys and pants. Below are the records (regular season plus postseason) for the different combinations:

JERSEY	PANTS	W-L-T	PCT.
Orange*	Black.....	3-0-0	1.000
Orange*	White.....	12-5-0	.706
Black	Black.....	12-9-1	.568
Black	White.....	26-25-0	.510
White	Black.....	18-21-0	.462
White	White.....	14-21-0	.400

* — Orange is designated as a "specialty jersey" with the NFL and can be worn for only two games per year.

No surprise here: America's favorite sport? Once again, pro football claims the top spot. For nearly three decades, according to the Harris Poll, the NFL has been No. 1.

In its most recent survey, Harris found 35 percent of respondents answering "NFL" to the simple question, "What is your favorite sport?" That's more than double the percentage for the No. 2 pick, baseball, at 14 percent. So dominant is the NFL that its percentage is higher than the Nos. 2-4 sports combined (32 percent). College football was No. 3 at 11 percent, making pro or college football the choice of 46 percent. Auto racing was fourth, at seven percent.

In addition, pro football has gained more than any other sport in popularity since 1985, moving up 11 points from 24 percent.

Bengal bites: Through their first three games, in three hours of game clock time, the Bengals have led for 2:20:47, have been tied for only 38 minutes and 25 seconds and have trailed for only 0:48. Their only time to trail was in the fourth quarter on Sept. 7 at Baltimore, when the Ravens scored to take a 16-15 lead with 5:46 to play. Cincinnati scored two plays later, at 4:58, taking the lead for good on Andy Dalton's 77-yard TD pass to A.J. Green ... Mike Nugent's five field goals in the first half in Week 1 at Baltimore tied the NFL record for most field goals in a half. Nugent connected from 49, 22, 28, 46 and 38 yards to give the Bengals a 15-0 second-quarter lead ... The Bengals are 1-for-1 this season on two-point conversions, and opponents are 0-for-1. Since 1994, when the two-point conversion was added to the NFL rules, the Bengals are 18-for-48 (37.5 percent), and their opponents are 19-for-45 (42.2 percent) ... The oldest player on the Bengals' active roster is CB Terence Newman, who turned 36 on Sept. 4 ... The youngest Bengal is HB Jeremy Hill, who's 21 and will turn 22 on Oct. 20 ... The tallest Bengal is DE Margus Hunt at 6-8 ... The shortest Bengal is HB Giovanni Bernard at 5-9 ... The heaviest Bengal is OT Andre Smith at 340 ... The lightest Bengal is WR Dane Sanzenbacher at 184 ... Over the last 11 seasons, including this season, the Bengals have posted winning records in September (21-15), November (20-17-1) and December (27-21). Losing months have been October (16-24) and January (1-4) ... The NFL lists Cincinnati as its fifth-smallest TV market, ranking 26th out of 30 with 908,440 TV households. (There are only 30 NFL markets because New York and San Francisco-Oakland each have two clubs.) Cincinnati ranks 35th among all U.S. TV markets. The eight non-NFL markets larger than Cincinnati (largest to smallest) are Orlando, Sacramento, Portland, Raleigh-Durham, Hartford, Columbus (Ohio), Salt Lake City and Milwaukee ... The Bengals are 15-10 on the road over the last four regular seasons, including this season, tied for the fourth-best winning percentage (.600) among NFL teams.

BENGALS QUOTES

Head coach Marvin Lewis, on the win over Tennessee:

"It was a good win, obviously, but we need to play better in all three phases. Defensively, we need to make sure we get in the right fits better, and we need to make sure we tackle better. We've got a good chance now to look at those things (during the bye). We can't be careless with the ball on offense at any point. We've got to make sure we're making accurate throws, we're catching the football, and we're not having balls go off our hands. Special teams, it's a matter of just continuing to get better. This group has now played together for two football games. During the preseason I make it hard on Darrin (Special teams coordinator Darrin Simmons). I make him play a lot of guys in different spots, so I can see who can do what. But now we've settled back into our guys, and we've got a couple of younger guys playing in there, and we've got to keep getting better. We need to break returns. We did a good job on the kickoffs that came out (by the Titans), did a good job on tackling. I thought Kevin Huber had a good day punting the ball. Mike (Nugent) had a good day on field goals and kickoffs."

QB Andy Dalton, on the variety and surprise that offensive coordinator Hue Jackson has shown as a play-caller:

"What I like about what we're doing is that we put defenses on edge. They don't know what we're doing. We're playing with a lot of confidence right now. When Hue calls something, I really think it's going to work."

Lewis, on LB Emmanuel Lamur, the team tackling leader through three games:

"We've liked him since his first day on the field with us (as an unsigned tryout player at 2012 rookie minicamp). He has the size (6-4, 240) to be a physical linebacker, and the speed and agility to cover like a safety. And you need that in a LB these days because of all the talented tight ends in the NFL. E-Man is also a very intellectual player for us. He understands applying what we do to the opponent. He works extremely hard at that. He's a guy who's working hard at excelling overall."

LBs coach Matt Burke, on LB Emmanuel Lamur's value in pass coverage:

"Tight ends are such good athletes nowadays. Teams can go with two tight ends, and if you can't match them with nickel or can't stay in base, they can do too much. The defense has to find athletes to match up with those types of players, and E-Man's a guy we feel does that for us. He played a little safety in college. That's where the game is going."

LB Vincent Rey, on LB Emmanuel Lamur:

"You just don't see guys that tall (6-4) run that fast. "He's one of the quickest linebackers I've seen."

Lewis, on whether he's seen a cornerback play as strongly at age 36 as Cincinnati's Terence Newman:

"I'm not quite sure how old Rod Woodson was at various points, but he was certainly a great one long into his career. Guys that are great players for a long time continue to do things the right way all the time. They're smart guys, they understand how to take care of their body physically, how to train during the offseason and how to go out and work during the season. Obviously, Terence is a physically gifted athlete as well. He's covering big, fast guys and little, fast guys. It is impressive."

G/C Mike Pollak, on QB Andy Dalton beating blitzes for long TD passes in each of the first two games:

"There's going to be times when it's not pretty, but you've got to love Dalton standing in the mess and not worrying about taking the hit. The media was getting after us for not performing well against the blitz, but I think we've answered that. Any time you can have those big striking plays against the blitz, it gets defenses to back off a little bit."

OT Marshall Newhouse, Andy Dalton's former college teammate, on Dalton heading forward with a lucrative new contract:

"Any guy with pride wants to live up to that kind of deal. I can only see him getting better from here."

Pollak, on playing a significant role as a swing player among the guard and center spots:

"I come out (to practice) and ask where I am each day. Whatever gets me in a role to get on the field. I just want to play where I can. I'm later in my career, I know my days are numbered. As long as I can get in there, that's what I care about."

Assistant head coach/OL coach Paul Alexander, on rookie C Russell Bodine, who has started Games 1-2:

"He's strong, mature, with great lateral quickness. I think he's going to be a terrific player."

Lewis, on SS George Iloka:

"George is better twofold this season, compared to last. He played with a cast on his hand throughout last season, and secondly, the experience of being in his second season (starting) is huge. He's been in the right spots. He was a year ago, but he didn't come down with those plays like he is now. The fact that he's in the right spots now, and he's the big man he is (6-4, 217) — tackling and making plays on the ball — are important. We need him to continue like that."

Lewis, on new offensive coordinator Hue Jackson:

"He is very detailed and demanding, and yet he can put his arm around the guy, and close the door, and explain to him why, and make him understand him why he's being, as the guys say, 'hard on him' that day. It's a good quality to have. You have to have both the demanding and the human qualities. These players are here as their profession, and they don't get to do it for very long. They have to understand we have their best interest at heart, to help them be the best player they can be. That's our goal, and we're going to push hard at that for every single one of them."

Lewis, on new defensive coordinator Paul Guenther, who was promoted this year from linebackers coach:

"I think Paul has done an excellent job of reaching out to each one of the defensive players individually — the guys that were returning guys — and has really impressed upon them what his expectations for each of them were individually, as well as collectively. I think they responded. Paul's unique. Paul worked in every phase of football around here, so he's basically been grown from the ground up with some of these guys, and he's worked with them through special teams, and he's worked with them initially just with me, and he's worked with them through defense and now as the coordinator. He's been involved really from the ground up with a lot of these guys."

DE Margus Hunt, on seeking a key role in his second pro season:

"I've been in the system for a year. I know where to line up and all the responsibilities that come with that. Now I can really unleash and play. Practices, the OTAs and camp — everything has helped me get the level of confidence that was missing last year. I can play more freely and faster. Last year, too many times I felt I could have, should have, had the sack. I just didn't finish the plays."

Special teams coordinator Darrin Simmons, on how much punt returner Adam Jones might see this season as coaches balance that role with his CB duties:

"Why would I tip my hand on that? I think he'd love to get more chances. He's dynamic with the ball in his hands. But last year we had injuries to (CBs) Leon (Hall) and Terence (Newman), so he wasn't available for that many chances. We couldn't afford to risk him getting hurt on a punt return. We just have to see how the team breaks down."

Lewis, on college free agent H-back Ryan Hewitt, the only college free agent to earn a spot on the initial 53-player roster:

"Ideally we want a combination of a power guy and a guy who can add pressure on the defense as a skill player. Be an effective blocker, but also add pressure in matchups. Ryan has shown us the potential to provide a little bit of that. He's an excellent receiver. And overall, it's just not been too big for him. As he grows and if he's fortunate enough to stay around here, I think by next year we'll have a real, real, real big physical man."

S George Iloka, on the 2014 AFC Central Division race:

"There is no champion right now. We were the 2013 division champ. No one's been crowned the champion of 2014. You're confident in that you know you won it last year. You might feel like, 'OK, they have to beat us now.' But we don't hold a belt."

Defensive coordinator Paul Guenther, on the Bengals high defensive rankings in recent seasons:

"We've got to understand how to define success around here. We've done some good things, but rankings aren't our goal. Success is going to be making the playoffs again and winning in the playoffs. And we won't get there without a great preseason and regular season, so the focus is on now."

Guenther, on the return of LB Emmanuel Lamur, who missed 2013 to an injury in the final preseason game:

"When he got hurt, I almost fainted. He's a young guy with things still to prove, but he had a real chance to expand his role last year, and it's the same situation this year. There's a lot of things you can do with him. He's very fast and agile for a 6-4, 240-pound guy. He can play safety, he can cover tight ends. And as we all know now in the league there are a lot of pass-receiving tight ends that we're going to face. He's a smart player who knows the defense, the kind of guy that understands the big picture. Having him back is a big advantage for us."

POSITION BY POSITION

Quarterbacks: Andy Dalton has started all 51 regular-season and three postseason games of his Cincinnati career. He has led the team to the playoffs in each of his three previous seasons, and in 2014 he'll bid to join Baltimore's Joe Flacco as the only starting QBs in the Super Bowl era to reach the postseason in their first four campaigns. Dalton and Flacco are among five

NFL QBs to make postseason in their first three campaigns. Against Tennessee, Dalton went 15-for-23 (65.2 percent) for 169 yards with no TDs and one INT, his first INT of the season. However, the highlight play of the day for the Bengals involved Dalton not as a quarterback, but as a receiver. At the end of the first quarter from the Tennessee 18, Dalton pitched the ball to WR Mohamed Sanu, and Dalton went the opposite direction as Sanu lofted a pass for him. Dalton caught the contested ball and sprinted to the end zone, diving at the goal line to avoid a tackler. Dalton became the fifth QB in Bengals history to catch a pass and the first to record a receiving TD. For the season, Dalton has passed 55-for-84 (65.5 percent) for 722 yards, with two TDs and one INT, good for a 95.4 passer rating. Jason Campbell, a 10th-year pro with 79 career NFL starts, is in No. 2 QB role. He made his Bengals debut vs. Tennessee after being active-DNP for Games 1-2. Campbell went one-for-two passing for minus-three in the mop-up role. Campbell signed with the Bengals as a free agent for 2014, after playing nine games with eight starts for Cleveland in 2013. He won an AFC Offensive Player of the Week award for his performance for the Browns in a win over Baltimore. Campbell has 16,694 career passing yards and 87 TD passes.

Halfbacks: Second-year pro Giovani Bernard, who generated much excitement while amassing 1209 scrimmage yards as a rookie, is in the No. 1 HB role. Bernard continued his strong start to the season in the Tennessee game. He rushed 14-for-47 with two TDs and had one catch for seven yards. Both of his rushing TDs came from one yard out, with one in the second quarter and one in the third quarter. For the season, Bernard has rushed 55-for-185 with three TDs and caught 12-for-148, tying for the team lead in receptions and ranking third in receiving yards. His 333 yards from scrimmage leads the team by a margin of 100 yards, and he ranks sixth in the AFC in scrimmage yards. On Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, his 27 rushing attempts and 169 yards from scrimmage were both career highs. His 56 receptions last season set a club record for a RB. Short of stature but strong and quick, he showed the ability to create highlight-reel plays in the open field both as a rusher and a receiver. But the Bengals do not figure to be a one-man show in the rushing game. Also strongly in the competition for front-line playing time is rookie second-round draft pick Jeremy Hill of LSU. Hill has shown early this season why he was the second running back drafted in the 2014 Draft. Against Tennessee, Hill rushed seven-for-39 (5.6) with a TD. His TD came from four yards out in the fourth quarter, giving the Bengals a 33-0 lead. For the season, Hill has rushed 26-for-132 (5.1) with two TDs and caught two-for-22. Hill entered the NFL draft after two stellar LSU seasons over which he set a school record for yards per rush (6.25). The 235-pounder had six rushes of 50 or more yards last season, and he has the potential to give the Bengals their best combination of power and breakaway ability at HB since all-time club rushing leader Corey Dillon (1997-2003), who was also a second-round draft selection. Fifth-year pro Cedric Peerman played in every Bengals game last season. He played on offense in the fourth quarter vs. Tennessee and rushed five-for-15. Peerman is an outstanding special teams player as well. Second-year pro Rex Burkhead of Nebraska is looking for more time in 2014, but he suffered a knee strain Aug. 16 vs. the Jets and missed the final two preseason games and the first three regular-season games. It is hoped Burkhead will be ready for New England. Burkhead was on the roster all last season but played in only one game. He scored 35 TDs at Nebraska while rushing for 3329 yards, including 14 games of 100 or more rushing yards.

Wide receivers: The Bengals are young, talented and already accomplished on the front line at wide receiver. Leading the pack again is fourth-year pro A.J. Green, who has claimed a place among the elite active wideouts in pro football. After missing virtually the entire game with a toe injury vs. Atlanta the week prior, Green returned to full action against Tennessee, and played well. He caught six-for-102, his second 100-yard game of the season, after catching six-for-131 with a TD in Week 1 at Baltimore. Green's 260 receptions through 2013 were the most in NFL history for a player over his first three seasons (Anquan Boldin second at 259), and his 3833 receiving yards were second-most for a player in seasons 1-3, trailing only Randy Moss (4163). Green seeks his fourth straight Pro Bowl berth in 2014, and in the last two seasons he has been a second-team choice on the Associated Press All-Pro team. For the second week in a row, third-year pro Mohamed Sanu has flashed his skills both as a receiver and as a passer. Sanu caught five-for-44 against Tennessee, but he also connected with QB Andy Dalton on an 18-yard TD pass. It was the second TD pass of his career. In his three seasons, Sanu has completed all four passes he's attempted, for 166 yards and two TDs. He also completed a 50-yard pass to Brandon Tate on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta. For the season, Sanu has caught 12-for-164 with a TD, tying for the team lead in receptions, and ranking second on the team in receiving yards. He also caught a successful two-point conversion attempt on Sept. 7 at Baltimore. Sanu is a big and physically tough receiver with strong ability to contest defenders for catches. Sanu caught 47 passes for 455 yards and two TDs last year. Third-year pro Marvin Jones was listed in the other starting WR spot alongside Green as the preseason schedule began, but Jones suffered a foot fracture in practice on Aug. 9, and has been inactive due to the injury for the first three games. It's hoped he will return to action at New England.

Jones is a fluid athlete with naturally graceful moves who can make tough catches look routine. He had 10 TD catches last season, second on the team to Green's 11, and he set a Bengals record with four receiving scores in a win over the Jets. Jones had 51 receptions and was second on the team in receiving yards at 712. Another veteran in the WR mix is sixth-year pro Brandon Tate. Tate has contributed mainly as a kick returner as a Bengal but has seen significant action on offense through the first three games. He caught one pass for five yards and had a 12 yard rush vs. Tennessee. For the season, Tate has caught six-for-74, including a 50-yard reception from Sanu on Sept. 14 at Atlanta. Dane Sanzenbacher, a fourth-year pro for 2014, may be ready to push for more playing time. Sanzenbacher's opportunities were limited last season, but his catch total of six for 61 yards included key plays in wins over Buffalo and Detroit. Sanzenbacher did not have a catch vs. Tennessee, but he did successfully recover an onside kick attempt by the Titans in the fourth quarter. He has caught two-for-42 on the season. Rookie seventh-round draft choice James Wright of LSU was an excellent special teams contributor in college and showed well as a receiver in the preseason and at practice. Wright missed the opener and has played in two games with no offensive statistics. He does have one special teams tackle on the season. Wright caught two-for-20 on the preseason, including a nine-yard TD at Kansas City.

Tight ends/H-back: Fifth-year pro Jermaine Gresham (two Pro Bowls) and second-year player Tyler Eifert (first-round draft pick in 2013) return after the first season in Bengals history in which two TEs were considered part of the starting base offense. But Eifert suffered an elbow injury in the season opener at Baltimore and has been placed on the Reserve/Injured list with a designation to possibly return this season. The earliest he could resume play would be Nov. 6 vs. Cleveland. Gresham had one catch for five yards vs. Tennessee. Gresham has started this season's first three games and has six catches for 46 yards. Gresham is the first Bengals TE to log three consecutive seasons of 50 or more catches, spanning 2010-12, and last year he had 46 catches, just short of tying Mike Ditka as the only other NFL player to hit 50 in his first four seasons. Gresham and Eifert led the way last season to a club-record receptions total by TEs (88), and the receiving yardage total by TEs (915) ranked third in club annals. Eifert last season had 39 catches for 445 yards and two TDs. H-back Ryan Hewitt was the lone college free agent to make the 53-man roster. Hewitt, a product of Stanford, has played in the first three games of the season, with two starts at H-Back. Hewitt recorded his first NFL catch vs. Tennessee, going for six yards. He also had his first rush, for no gain. Hewitt has been praised by the coaching staff as a developing player with strong potential. Second-year TE Kevin Brock was signed by the Bengals on Sept. 16, and made his 2014 Bengals debut in the Tennessee game. He had one catch, for minus-three yards. Brock, in his second stint with the Bengals, was on the roster for the 2013 Wild Card Playoff and during the '14 offseason and preseason.

Offensive linemen: The line has led the way as the Bengals have allowed no sacks in the first three games, the first such instance in franchise history. The Bengals are the only NFL team not to allow a sack this season. Cincinnati's tackles are LOT Andrew Whitworth and ROT Andre Smith. Whitworth returns to LOT after finishing last season at guard, due to injuries elsewhere on the line. Whitworth leads the current roster in career Bengals starts (119 regular season), and 90 of those have been at OT. He was a Pro Bowl selection in the 2012 season and is one of the team's prime locker room leaders. Smith, a sixth-year player, has started 39 of the team's last 40 regular-season and postseason games. He missed all four preseason games while rehabbing from a concussion, but was able to come back and start the regular-season opener. Smith was a Bengals first-round draft choice in 2009. The line had an injury switch at RG for the Tennessee game. Third-year starter Kevin Zeitler, a 2012 first-round draftee, was out with a calf injury suffered Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta. He was replaced by seventh-year pro Mike Pollak, who also played the remainder of the Atlanta game in his place. Zeitler's status for New England has yet to be determined. Pollak is in his second Bengals season and is seen as a starting-quality replacement at any interior line position. Clint Boling, a fourth-year pro in 2014, is the starting LG. Boling had started 29 straight games (including postseason) until he was felled on Dec. 1 of last season by a major knee injury. Boling made a quicker-than-expected recovery, and saw full action in preseason and has started the first three games of the season. At C, fourth-round draft choice Russell Bodine of North Carolina has been in the starting role since the opening of training camp. Among Bengals offensive line rookies not drafted in the first round, Bodine is bidding to become the first to hold down a starting position for a season since G Eric Steinbach in 2003, and Steinbach was a second-rounder. The Bengals made an acquisition to bolster OT depth with the offseason signing of fifth-year pro Marshall Newhouse as an unrestricted free agent. Newhouse had 47 games played with 31 starts for Green Bay from 2010-

13, plus four playoff game appearances with two starts. Newhouse started all four preseason games and has seen action in the first three games this season as an extra blocking TE on selected plays, including a start in the Tennessee game. Second-year OT Tanner Hawkinson and first-year G/C T.J. Johnson both cracked the 53-man roster, and both saw brief action in the Tennessee game. Hawkinson was on the Bengals roster for all of 2013 but only played in one game. Johnson spent the entire 2013 season on the Bengals practice squad, and the Tennessee game marked his NFL debut.

Defensive linemen: The Bengals defensive line has been recognized in recent seasons as one of the NFL's best, and plenty of talent returns for 2014. Last season, defensive ends Carlos Dunlap and Wallace Gilberry tied for the team lead in sacks (7.5), and they have combined for 4.5 sacks through the first three games of this season. Dunlap has had a sack in each of the first three games, and he dropped Jake Locker for a five-yarder in the third quarter vs. Tennessee. He had six tackles, leading the line, including one for a loss. For the season, Dunlap has logged 11 tackles (three for loss), with a team-leading three sacks. His three sacks are tied for the second in the AFC and rank tied for fifth in the NFL. Last season, Dunlap also blocked two field goals, led the team in forced fumbles (four, for the second straight season) and led the line in passes defended (10). Gilberry has started all three games and logged two tackles vs. Tennessee. On the season, he has nine tackles (one for loss), including 1.5 sacks, and a pass defended. Gilberry collected his 7.5 sacks last season while starting only two games, and he has opened 2014 in the No. 1 RDE spot. He had 1.5 sacks in Week 1 at Baltimore on the final two defensive plays of the game. Fifth-year DT Geno Atkins, a first-team All-Pro in 2012 and '13, is back for '14 after a knee injury (ACL tear) cost him the last seven games of last season. Atkins has started all three games this season, and has three tackles (one for loss), including one vs. Tennessee. Atkins has had few if any NFL peers as an interior pass rusher, with 26 sacks in 41 games over 2011-13. Alongside Atkins for the fourth straight year is NT Domata Peko, a team leader on the field and in the locker room. Peko has led the line in tackles for most of his previous eight Bengals seasons. He started vs. Tennessee and logged three tackles. For the season, Peko has 10 tackles. He is the only current Bengal to have started every game the last four seasons. Cincinnati's depth at DT has been led by a pair of third-year pros in Brandon Thompson and Devon Still. Thompson started seven games in 2013 after the injury to Atkins, and had played in the line rotation in the first two games of this season before suffering a knee injury. He missed the Tennessee game and his status going forward has not been determined. At Baltimore in Week 1, Thompson tied for the line lead with four tackles. Still has played in two games this season and has five tackles, including two against Tennessee. Still was on the practice squad for Game 1 and one signed to the active roster prior to Game 2. A 2012 second-round pick, Still was limited to 10 games last season due to multiple injuries suffered. DE Robert Geathers is back for an 11th Bengals season. He was limited to two games last season by an elbow injury but is fully recovered for 2014. Geathers had three tackles and an INT vs. Tennessee. His INT came after a pass breakup by S George Iloka, and it was the third career INT for Geathers. Geathers has played in the line rotation in Games 1-3, with four tackles. He started every game in 2012 and leads the roster in career Bengals games (139). Fresh off a strong preseason in which he led the Bengals with four sacks, second-year DE Margus Hunt has played in the line rotation in Games 1-3. He had one tackle vs. Tennessee, and also has a special teams tackle and a pass defended on the season. The 6-8, 290-pounder has tremendous physical potential and played in 10 games as a rookie last season. His only limitation has been football experience, as he's a native of Estonia and had never played football before taking it up at 2009 at Southern Methodist University, where he initially had arrived on a track and field scholarship. Yet another promising DE prospect is rookie Will Clarke, third-round draft choice from West Virginia. Clarke has the size and stature (6-6, 271) the Bengals seek at DE and is the only player in West Virginia history to win three "Iron Mountaineer" awards for excellence in the weight room. Clarke was inactive (coaches' decision) for the first two games of the season, and he made his NFL debut vs. Tennessee (no statistics). He finished the preseason with nine tackles and a sack.

Linebackers: Cincinnati's linebacker corps is led by 2013 season Pro Bowl WLB Vontaze Burfict, who truly merits being called a tackling machine. He logged 204 tackles last season, most on the team by a margin of 96, and that followed a rookie season in which his 174 stops led the team by 22. Burfict has only two partial game appearances this season, however. He was inactive for the Tennessee game due to a concussion suffered Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta, and he also left the Sept. 7 Baltimore game early due to a concussion. His status for New England has not been determined. For the season, Burfict has eight tackles, a forced fumble, a fumble recovery and two passes defended. He had a pass defended vs. Atlanta that led to an INT by CB Leon Hall. Burfict already ranks among the top college free agent finds in Bengals history, a once-touted star at Arizona State whose draft stock had tumbled due to raps for undisciplined play and poor physical shape, raps he has disproven as a pro. Second on the Bengals in tackles the last three seasons has been MLB Rey Mauluga, a sixth-year pro in 2014. Mauluga started at MLB and had two tackles vs. Tennessee. For the season, Mauluga has logged six tackles. Mauluga had 110 tackles last season. He has started 13 or more games each season since joining the Bengals in 2009 as a second-round draft choice. Emmanuel Lamur has opened the season as the No. 1 SLB, and fourth-year pro Vincent Rey is a strong contender for playing time at MLB or OLB. Third-year pro Lamur, big and athletic at 6-4 and 240 pounds, had been tabbed for a significant role last season but was lost for the year to a preseason shoulder injury. Lamur started at SLB vs. Tennessee and had three tackles, including one for a loss. Lamur leads the Bengals with 21 tackles on the season, and he also has an interception and two passes defended. Rey played vs. Atlanta and had one tackle. Rey started at WLB in place for Burfict for the Tennessee game, and he had four tackles. For the season, Rey has recorded nine tackles and two passes defended. Rey broke out last season with 54 tackles, 4.0 sacks, and two INTs (one for a TD). He started three games as an injury replacement at MLB and saw considerable action otherwise in the defensive rotation. On Nov. 10 at Baltimore, he became the first (and still only) Bengal with three sacks and an INT in the same contest. OLB Jayson DiManche has played in all three games with no statistics, seeing his first action on defense in the Tennessee game. DiManche played in every game last season after making the roster as a college free agent, and he finished second in special teams tackles (12) while logging six tackles on defense. Second-year pro Sean Porter was with the Bengals last season but did not play due to a torn labrum suffered in preseason. After an offseason of rehab, he came back and made the 2014 season-opening roster. He suffered a hamstring injury in the preseason finale vs. Indianapolis, and has been inactive for the first three contests. His status for New England not been determined. Rookie OLB Marquis Flowers cracked the 53-man roster. Flowers, the sixth-round pick out of the University of Arizona, has played in Games 1-3 with no statistics. He saw his first action on defense in the Tennessee game. Flowers played in all four preseason games and logged 10 tackles, tying for third on the team.

Defensive backs: The starting safeties from last year's third-ranked NFL defense return for 2014, and there is depth at the position as well. George Iloka, a third-year pro in '14, is the starting SS, and he led the team with eight tackles against Tennessee. He also had a pass defended which led to an interception by DE Robert Geathers. For the season, Iloka has 13 tackles, two INTs and four passes defended. He picked off Matt Ryan twice on Sept. 14 vs. Atlanta. Eighth-year pro Reggie Nelson has been a Bengals starter since late 2010. He has been effective in multiple ways thus far this season. Nelson had six tackles and an INT of Jake Locker vs. Tennessee. On the season, Nelson is tied for the secondary lead and second on the team with 19 tackles, and tied for second on the team with 1.5 sacks. He also has two passes defended. He's a hard hitter and also has logged 12 INTs for the Bengals. He led the team in INTs in 2011 and tied for the team lead in '12. The Bengals also have two other safeties with NFL credentials. Taylor Mays, a fifth-year player, had played in 25 straight Bengals games (including postseason) before a shoulder injury sidelined him at midseason last year. Mays played on defense and special teams vs. Tennessee (no statistics). He is tied for second on the team with two special teams tackles. Aiming for a bigger role in 2014 is second-year pro Shawn Williams. A third-round draft pick in '13, Williams played in every game, primarily on special teams, and he led the team in special teams tackles (14). He has played in all three games with no statistics. The Bengals are more than two-deep in the prime depth-chart spots at corner, with four well-credentialed veterans and a first-round draft choice. The incumbents at the starting spots are LCB Terence Newman and RCB Leon Hall. Newman started at LCB vs. Tennessee, and had two tackles with a pass defended. For the season, Newman is tied for second on the team and the secondary lead with 19 tackles, and he leads the team with five passes defended. Hall has started Games 1-3 at RCB. He had two tackles vs. Tennessee. He has 11 tackles, an INT and two passes defended on the season. Hall was limited to five games last year, his season ended by an Achilles tear. Hall was a Bengals first-round draft choice in 2007, and his 24 career INTs rank fifth in club history. Eighth-year vet CB Adam Jones played in every game last season, with 13 starts at either CB or nickel back. Jones played against Tennessee and recorded five tackles and a pass defended. For the season, Jones has 14 tackles and three passes defended. Last season, Jones tied for the team lead in INTs (three) and led the team in passes defended (18). He's in his fourth season with the Bengals. CB Dre Kirkpatrick, a first-round Cincinnati 2012 draft choice, was limited by injuries as a rookie but came on last season to play 14 games with three starts. He had one tackle vs. Tennessee. Kirkpatrick has played Games 1-3 and has three tackles on defense and one on special teams for the season. Last season, Kirkpatrick had two INTs, one for a TD, in the regular-season finale vs. Baltimore and wound up tied for the team lead in INTs (three) for the season. Primed to challenge the vets for playing time at CB is 2014 first-round draft choice Darqueze Dennard of Michigan State. Dennard was a USA Today first-team All-American last season while helping lead the Spartans to a No. 3 national ranking and a No. 1 ranking in fewest yards allowed. Dennard has played in Games 2-3, including seeing his first action on defense vs. Tennessee. He had two tackles on defense, including a three-yard sack of Locker. Dennard also logged a special teams tackle, his second of the season.

Special teams: The Bengals' specialist trio from last season returns. P Kevin Huber holds franchise career records for gross punting average (44.2) and net average (39.2), and he also holds the season records for both categories, set in 2012 (46.6 gross and 42.0 net). Huber had an excellent day against Tennessee, punting four times for a gross average of 49.3 and a net of 49.0. He had three inside-20 kicks, with punts downed at the two and the four, and another resulting in Tennessee starting from their own 11. The punt downed at the two eventually resulted in a holding penalty by Tennessee in the end zone, giving the Bengals a safety. Huber had no touchbacks on the day. For the season, Huber's gross average is 43.3 and his net is 42.4, good for ninth in the NFL. He has eight inside-20 kicks and no touchbacks, ranking tied for third in the league for plus differential. Huber missed the last two regular-season games of 2013 and the Wild Card playoff due to injury, but he returned at full speed for this season. K Mike Nugent nailed his only field goal attempt against Tennessee, good from 29 yards. He is seven-for-11 on field goal attempts on the season. He also connected on all four extra point attempts, and is seven-for-seven on the season. Nugent also handles kickoffs for the Bengals, and all 18 of his kickoffs have reached the end zone, with eight touchbacks. Nugent made five first half field goals Week 1 at Baltimore, tying an NFL record for field goals made in a half. It also tied a personal career high for field goals made in a game. Nugent had two game-winning field goals in the final two minutes last season. He holds club season records for points (132) and field goals (33), both set in 2011. LS Clark Harris has played in every Bengals game since signing in October of 2009. He has had no unplayable snaps, with his Bengals total now standing at 733 (385 punts and 348 place kicks). CB Adam Jones has averaged 17.8 yards on four punt returns this season and leads the NFL. He has five career punt returns for TDs. WR Brandon Tate has been the team's primary punt returner and kickoff returner in recent seasons. He ranks first in Bengals history in average yards per kickoff return (24.81), and he is second in punt return average (9.87). He ranked sixth in the AFC last season in kickoff return average (26.1) and punt return average (9.3). HB Cedric Peerman had a great day in punt coverage vs. Tennessee. He downed a punt at the Tennessee two, which eventually resulted in a holding penalty by Tennessee, giving the Bengals a safety. Peerman also had two special teams tackles, and he leads the Bengals on the season with three.

THE LAST BENGALS-PATRIOTS MEETINGS

2010 SEASON

WEEK 1, GAME 1

New England Patriots 38, Cincinnati Bengals 24
Sunday, Sept. 12, 2010 at Gillette Stadium

The Bengals racked up 428 net offensive yards, outgaining New England by more than 50 yards, but most of them came too late to affect the decision. The Patriots rolled to a 24-3 halftime lead and made it 31-3 on WR Brandon Tate's 97-yard kickoff return to open the second half. Bengals QB Carson Palmer passed for 345 yards, his most since Game 2 of 2007, but his TD passes to TE Jermaine Gresham and WR Chad Johnson were offset by a 59-yard INT return for a TD by New England LB Gary Guyton. With 53 receiving yards, Bengals WR Terrell Owens became the third receiver in NFL history to pass 15,000 yards. Johnson had 12 receptions (tying his career high) for 159 yards, and he became the first Bengal to pass the 10,000 mark in receiving yards.

2013 SEASON

WEEK 5, GAME 5

Cincinnati Bengals 13, New England Patriots 6
Sunday, Oct. 6, 2013 at Paul Brown Stadium

The Bengals' defense took the starring role as Cincinnati knocked off an unbeaten New England team. The Patriots were limited to 248 net yards and converted just one of 12 third downs. New England failed to score a TD for the first time in 67 games, and QB Tom Brady was held without a TD pass for the first time in 53 games. The Patriots threatened late for a tying TD, gaining a first down at the Cincinnati 27 with 26 seconds left, but CB Adam Jones, starting in place of injured CB Leon Hall, made an acrobatic INT at the Bengals' three-yard line to ice the win. Cincinnati's offense didn't have big point production, but the rushing game totaled 162 yards, and the offense drove 93 yards for the game's only TD on a 14-play march spanning the third and fourth quarters. The big play of the drive was a 28-yard pass from QB Andy Dalton to WR Marvin Jones on a third-and-15 play from the Bengals' two-yard line. The Bengals converted two more third downs on the drive, and they scored the TD on a rush by HB BenJarvus Green-Ellis on fourth-and-goal from the one. The Bengals improved to 3-2, staying in a tie with Baltimore and Cleveland for the AFC North Division lead. The Patriots fell to 4-1.

2014 GAME SUMMARIES

WEEK 1, GAME 1

Cincinnati Bengals 23, Baltimore Ravens 16 Sunday, Sept. 7, 2014 at M&T Bank Stadium

The Bengals were dangerously close to a gut-wrenching opening loss when Baltimore scored on an 80-yard TD pass from QB Joe Flacco to WR Steve Smith with 5:46 left, taking a 16-15 lead after trailing 15-0. But the Bengals responded on the second play of their next possession with a 77-yard scoring bomb from QB Andy Dalton to WR A.J. Green at the 4:58 mark. The Ravens had one more shot, moving to a third-and-four at the Cincinnati 16-yard line with 1:09 left, but the Bengals sacked Flacco on the next two plays to secure the win. DE Wallace Gilberry had one of the sacks and shared the other with S Reggie Nelson. The Bengals dominated the game well into the third quarter but could not cash a TD, moving ahead 15-0 on five Mike Nugent FGs in the first half. Nugent tied the NFL record for FGs in a half.

WEEK 2, GAME 2

Cincinnati Bengals 24, Atlanta Falcons 10 Sunday, Sept. 14, 2014 at Paul Brown Stadium

The Bengals started slowly, missing two FGs with the score tied 3-3. But Cincinnati broke ahead 10-3 late in the second quarter, as a 91-yard drive featured a 46-yard gain by HB Giovani Bernard on a short pass and a four-yard TD run by Bernard. Bernard had 169 yards from scrimmage (90 rushing and 79 receiving). His 27 rushing attempts topped by 12 his previous career high. Two more TDs in the third quarter sealed the deal as Cincinnati went ahead 24-3. One of the TDs came on a 76-yard pass from QB Andy Dalton to WR Mohamed Sanu, as Dalton became the first Bengals QB to complete a pass of 75-plus in each of two consecutive games. A week earlier, the Falcons had won their opener in OT against New Orleans with 568 yards of offense. QB Matt Ryan had passed for three TDs and no INTs against the Saints. But the Bengals held Atlanta to 309 yards and intercepted three Ryan passes. The victory was Cincinnati's 10th straight in the regular season at home, tying a franchise record set in 1988-89. The Bengals completed a second straight game without allowing a sack or turnover on offense, marking the first time in franchise history for such a feat in Games 1-2. Cincinnati improved to 2-0 and took an undisputed one-game lead in the AFC North. Atlanta dropped to 1-1.

WEEK 3, GAME 3

Cincinnati Bengals 33, Tennessee Titans 7
Sunday, Sept. 21, 2014 at Paul Brown Stadium

The Bengals broke to a 10-0 lead on the last snap of the first quarter, on one of their most entertaining plays in recent years, a TD pass from WR Mohamed Sanu to QB Andy Dalton covering 18 yards. Dalton lateraled to Sanu on an apparent end-around, but Sanu pulled up and threw back across the field to Dalton, who snatched the ball against tight coverage from CB Bledi Wreh-Wilson before dashing to the end zone. Dalton became the first Bengals QB in Bengals history to catch a TD pass, and Sanu became the first Bengals WR to throw one. It was all Bengals from that point on, as Cincinnati rolled to a 33-0 lead before allowing a Tennessee TD in the fourth quarter. The Bengals' defense allowed the Titans to convert their first two third-down situations and then stopped them on their last 10 opportunities. The victory was Cincinnati's 11th straight at home in the regular season, dating back to the 2012 home finale, setting a club record. The Bengals improved to 3-0 and maintained a one-game lead over Baltimore and Pittsburgh in the AFC North. The Titans fell to 1-2.

INDIVIDUAL GAME-BY-GAME STATISTICS

On the following pages are current game-by-game statistical tables for each 2014 Bengals player. The defensive statistics and special teams defensive statistics are press box statistics produced at the games. Statistical tables for players who were not with the Bengals at the beginning of the 2014 season include statistics they had with other teams prior to their arrival in Cincinnati. This booklet does not contain information on any activity players may have had with other teams after leaving the Bengals.
